The Material Culture of Basketry Stephanie Bunn, Victoria Mitchell, 2020-10-29 The Material Culture of Basketry celebrates basketry as a culturally significant skilled practice and as a theoretically rich discipline which has much to offer contemporary society While sometimes understudied and underappreciated it has much in common with mathematics and engineering art craft and design and can also act as a socially beneficial source of skill and care Contributors show how local knowledge of materials plants and place are central to the craft Case studies include the skill in weaverbird nest building challenging how we perceive learning in craft and nature an engineer's perspective on twining Peruvian grass bridges and the local knowledge embodied in Pacific plaited patterns and knots Photo essays explore materials and techniques from the point of view of artists anthropologists and mathematicians revealing how the structure and skill in basketwork illustrate a significant form of textile technology Thus the book argues that the textures patterns and geometric forms that emerge through basketwork reflect an embodied knowledge which expresses mathematical and engineering comprehension The therapeutic value of the craft is recognised through a selection of case studies which consider basketry as a healing process for patients with brain injury mental health problems and as a memory aid for people living with dementia This reclaims basketry's significant role in occupational therapy as an agent of recovery and well being Finally basketry s inherently sustainable nature is also considered demonstrating the continuation of basketry in spite of handwork s general decline and profiling new and recycled materials Above all the book envisages basketry as an intellectually rewarding means of knowing It presents the craft as embodying care for skilled making and for the social and natural environments in which it flourishes Skin Crafts Julia Skelly,2022-02-10 Skin Crafts discusses multiple artists from global contexts who employ craft materials in works that address historical and contemporary violence These artists are deliberately embracing the fragility of textiles and ceramics to evoke the vulnerability of human skin and in so doing are demanding visceral responses from viewers Drawing on a range of theories including affect theory material feminism skin studies phenomenology and global art history the book illuminates the various ways in which artists are harnessing the affective power of craft materials to address and cope with violence Artists from Mexico Africa China the Netherlands and Indigenous artists based in the unceded territory known as Canada are examined in relation to one another to illuminate the connections and differences across their bodies of work Skin Crafts interrogates ongoing material violence towards women and marginalized others and demonstrates the power of contemporary art to force viewers and scholars into facing their ethical responsibilities as human beings Designing for Health & Wellbeing: Home, City, Society Matthew Jones,Louis Rice,Fidel Meraz,2019-12-03 Rapid urbanization represents major threats and challenges to personal and public health The World Health Organisation identifies the urban health threat as three fold infectious diseases non communicable diseases and violence and injury from amongst other things road traffic Within this tripartite structure of health issues in the built environment there are multiple individual issues affecting both the developed and the developing worlds and the global north and south Reflecting on a broad set of interrelated concerns about health and the design of the places we inhabit this book seeks to better understand the interconnectedness and potential solutions to the problems associated with health and the built environment Divided into three key themes home city and society each section presents a number of research chapters that explore global processes transformative praxis and emergent trends in architecture urban design and healthy city research Drawing together practicing architects academics scholars public health professional and activists from around the world to provide perspectives on design for health this book includes emerging research on healthy homes walkable cities design for ageing dementia and the built environment health equality and urban poverty community health services neighbourhood support and wellbeing urban sanitation and communicable disease the role of transport infrastructures and government policy and the cost implications of unhealthy cities etc To that end this book examines alternative and radical ways of practicing architecture and the re imagining of the profession of architecture through a lens of human health Radical Decadence Julia Skelly,2017-05-04 This pioneering book explores the notion of radical decadence as concept aesthetic and lived experience and as an analytical framework for the study of contemporary feminist textile art Gendered discourses of decadence that perpetuate anxieties about women's power consumption and pleasure are deconstructed through images of drug use, female sexuality and excessive living in artworks by several contemporary textile artists including Orly Cogan, Tracey Emin, Allyson Mitchell and Rozanne Hawksley. Perceptions of decadence are invariably bound to the negative connotations of decay and degradation, particularly with regard to the transgression of social norms related to femininity and the female body. Excessive consumption by women has historically been represented as grotesque, and until now women's pleasure in relation to drug and alcohol use has largely gone unexamined in feminist art history and craft studies. Here, representations of female consumption from cupcakes to alcohol and cocaine are opened up for critical discussion. Drawing on feminist and queer theories, Julia Skelly considers portrayals of bad girls in artworks that explore female sexuality, performative pieces designed to subvert and exceed feminine roles. In this provocative book, decadence is understood not as a destructive force but as a liberating aesthetic.

How Textile Communicates Ganaele Langlois, 2023-12-14. In this open access publication, Ganaele Langlois describes how textile has been used as a medium of communication since the prehistoric period. In fact, up until the 19th century, civilizations throughout the world manipulated thread and fabric to communicate in a way that would astound many of us now. Unlike text and images, textile is haptic and three-dimensional. Its meaning is unfixed, constantly shifting as it circulates between different owners and creators. In How Textile Communicates, Langlois dissects textile's unique capacity for communication through a range of global case studies, before examining the profound impact of colonialism on textile practice and the appropriation of this medium by capitalist systems. A thought-provoking contribution to the fields of both fashion and communication studies, Langlois's writing challenges readers' preconceptions and shines new light on the profound impact of textiles on human communication. The ebook editions of this book are available open access under a CC BY-NC-ND 4.0 licence on bloomsburycollections.com. Open access was funded by York University, Toronto, Canada.

Critical by Design? Claudia Mareis, Moritz Greiner-Petter, Michael Renner, 2022-02-03. In its constructive and speculative nature, design has the critical potential to reshape prevalent socio-material realities. At the same time, design is inevitably normative, if not often violent, as it stabilises the past, normalises the present and precludes just and sustainable futures. The contributions rethink concepts of critique that influence the field of design, question inherent blind spots of the discipline and expand understandings of what critical design practices could be. With contributions from design theory, practice and education, art theory, philosophy and informatics, Critical by Design aims to question and unpack the ambivalent tensions between design and critique.
