Walter Jerrold, 1915 Kitchener (Classic Reprint) C. R. Ballard, 2015-07-10 Excerpt from Kitchener From the earliest days Kitchener's life was strangely unlike that of the average British officer No public school or cricket field except for short periods no mess room or garrison routine no promotion examinations or Staff College He was scarcely ever on parade and never attended manuvres until he became a General His father Colonel Kitchener served in the 13th Light Dragoons and for a short period before retiring had exchanged into the 9th Foot He had a reputation for a very violent temper and some strong prejudices The family consisted of four children three sons and one daughter of whom the third was Horatio Herbert born in Ireland June 24 1850 In accordance with one of the Colonel's theories none of the boys went to public schools The system of private tutors means close individual attention and from a purely academic point of view may be the best means of working up knowledge The pupil was brilliant at mathematics and mechanics a couple of years in France and Switzerland added French and German A short time with London crammers was sufficient to pass him into Woolwich Academy which he joined as a cadet in 1868 About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works With Kitchener to Khartum (Classic Reprint) G. river bristling with obstacles defeating an enormously superior force unsurpassed in the world for courage and finally killing the leader of the enemy and crushing out the last spark of opposition was a stupendous one After the death of Gordon and the retirement of the British troops there was no force in existence that could have barred the advance of the fanatical hordes of the Mahdi had they poured down into Egypt The native Egyptian army was as yet in the earliest stage of organization and could not be relied upon to stand firm against the wild rush of the Dervishes Fortunately time was given for that organization to be completed and when at last the Dervish forces marched north they were repulsed Assouan was saved and Wady Haifa became the Egyptian outpost Gradually preparations were made for taking the offensive a railway was constructed along the banks of the Nile and a mixed force of British and Egyptians drove the enemy beyond Dongola then by splendidly organized labour a railroad was made from Wady Haifa across the desert towards the elbow of the great bend from Dongola to Abu Hamed The latter place was captured by an Egyptian brigade moving up from the former place and from that moment the movement was carried on with irresistible energy About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works The Publishers Weekly ,1921 The New International Year Book ,1901 Books in Print ,1977
