

Horst Von Harbou Metropolis

John Howard Reid

Horst Von Harbou Metropolis:

Metropolis Horst von Harbou, 2013 Fritz Lang's Metropolis from 1927 is the undisputed prototype of science fiction films in the twentieth century. A collection of images by the still photographer Horst von Harbou bequeathed by Brigitte Helm who had appeared in the film as a seventeen year old has re-emerged at an auction in Berlin in late 2010. Edition 7L Paris the new owner of the originals has now printed an identical facsimile of the original album which was once given to Brigitte Helm as a souvenir by von Harbou and his wife. Metropolis displays the photographs and some of their reverse sides which feature hand written notes. The images exclusively show scenes from the film during its making and off camera action and mainly feature the young actress. They not only offer a rare insight into Lang's film but have been crucial in reconstructing missing scenes from it. Horst von Harbou was born in 1879 in Huttta Posen and died in 1953 in Potsdam Babelsberg. Very little is known about von Harbou except for the films on which he worked as a still photographer these include Mensch ohne Namen 1932 Starke Herzen im Sturm 1937 and Augen der Liebe 1951. Fritz Lang's Metropolis Michael Minden, Holger Bachmann, 2002. Providing a broad range of materials and resources for the study of Fritz Lang's classic film Metropolis 1927 this volume includes both standard critical essays and contributions appearing for the first time. Metropolis Thomas Elsaesser, 2019-07-25. Metropolis is a monumental work. On its release in 1925 after sixteen months filming it was Germany's most expensive feature film a canvas for director Fritz Lang's increasingly extravagant ambitions. Lang inspired by the skyline of New York created a whole new vision of cities. One of the greatest works of science fiction the film also tells human stories about love and family. Thomas Elsaesser explores the cultural phenomenon of Metropolis its different versions there is no definitive one its changing meanings and its role as a database of twentieth century imagery and ideologies. In his foreword to this special edition published to celebrate the 20th anniversary of the BFI Film Classics series Elsaesser discusses the impact of the 27 minutes of lost footage discovered in Buenos Aires in 2008 and incorporated in a restored edition which premiered in 2010. German Film Deutsche Kinemathek – Museum für Film und Fernsehen, 2024-10-23. Cinematography in the Weimar Republic Paul Matthew St.

Pierre, 2016-08-15 In film history, director-cinematographer collaborations were on a labor spectrum with the model of the contracted camera operator in the silent era and that of the cinematographer in the sound era. But in the Weimar era, German filmmaking (1919-33), a short period of intense artistic activity and political and economic instability, these models existed side by side due to the emergence of camera operators as independent visual artists and collaborators with directors. Berlin in the 1920s was the chief site of the interdisciplinary avant-garde of the Modernist movement in the visual, literary, architectural, design, typographical, sartorial and performance arts in Europe. The Weimar Revolution that arose in the aftermath of the November 1918 Armistice and that established the Weimar Republic informed and agitated all of the art movements such as Expressionism, Dada, the Bauhaus, Minimalism, Objectivism, Verism and Neue Sachlichkeit (New Objectivity). Among the avant-garde forms of these new stylistically and culturally negotiated arts, the cinema was foremost and since its inception had been a radical experimental practice in new visual technologies that proved instrumental in changing how human beings perceived movement, structure, perspective, light, exposure, temporal duration, continuity, spatial orientation, human postural, facial, vocal and gestural displays and their own spectatorship as well as conventions of storytelling like narrative, setting, theme, character and structure. Whereas most of the arts mobilized into schools, movements, institutions and other structures, cinema as a collaborative art tended to organize around its ensembles of practitioners. Historically, the silent film era (1895-1927) is associated with auteurs, the precursors of François Truffaut and other filmmakers in the 1960s, actuality filmmakers and pioneers like R.W. Paul and Fred and Joe Evans in England, Auguste and Louis Lumière and Georges Méliès in France and Charles Chaplin and Buster Keaton in America, who by managing all the compositional, executive and editorial facets of film production, scripting, directing, acting, photographing, set, costume and lighting design, editing and marketing, imposed their personal vision or authorship on the film. The dichotomy of the auteur and the production ensemble established a production hierarchy in most filmmaking. In formative German silent film, however, this hierarchy was less rank or class driven because collaborative partnerships took precedence over single authorship. Whereas in silent film production in most countries the terms filmmaker and director were synonymous, in German silent film the plural term Filmmacherin connoted both directors and cinematographers along with the rest of the filmmaking crew. Thus German silent filmmakers' principal contribution to the new medium and art of film was less the representational iconographies of Expressionist, New Objective and Naturalist styles than the executorial practice of co authorship and co production in distinctive cinematographer director partnerships such as those of cinematographer Theodor Sparkuhl and director Ernst Lubitsch Fritz Arno Wagner with F W Murnau Fritz Lang and G W Pabst Rudolf Mat with Carl Theodor Dreyer Guido Seeber with Lang and Pabst and Carl Hoffmann with Lang and Murnau

A Companion to Fritz Lang Joe McElhaney, 2015-01-27 A Companion to Fritz Lang Fritz Lang's movie making spans a major part of the history of cinema across genres styles and national contexts With smartness and sharpness the essays in this essential volume come from many angles to capture the richness of Lang's cinema and bring great insight to its study Dana Polan Cinema Studies NYU Fritz Lang's influence on cinema cannot be overstated with a career that stretched from the silent era in Germany to the decline of the Hollywood studio system in the late 1950s from the Weimar Republic to Nazi Germany from Depression America to the McCarthy era One of the best known migr's from Germany's school of Expressionism Lang is also credited with influencing the emergence of film noir A Companion to Fritz Lang offers the first full scale collection of scholarship available in English on one of the most important filmmakers of all time Addressing much of Lang's voluminous body of work from Metropolis and M to lesser known titles such as Western Union and Clash by Night this volume offers a superb overview of Lang's cinema with revealing insights into his enduring influence on directors such as Godard Scorsese Chabrol and Tarantino The two dozen essays presented here are an unrivaled and up to the minute assessment of the prolific and resilient life and vision of one of cinema's greatest auteurs
