Writing the History of the Mind Cristina Chimisso, 2016-02-11 For much of the twentieth century French intellectual life was dominated by theoreticians and historians of mentalité Traditionally the study of the mind and of its limits and capabilities was the domain of philosophy however in the first decades of the twentieth century practitioners of the emergent human and social sciences were increasingly competing with philosophers in this field ethnologists sociologists psychologists and historians of science were all claiming to study how people think Scholars including Gaston Bachelard Georges Canguilhem Lucien Lévy-Bruhl Lucien Febvre Abel Rey Alexandre Koyré and Henri Metzger were all investigating the mind historically and participating in shared research projects Yet as they have since been appropriated by the different disciplines literature on their findings has so far failed to recognise the connections between their research and their importance in intellectual history In this exemplary book Cristina Chimisso reconstructs the world of these intellectuals and the key debates in the philosophy of mind particularly between those who studied specific mentalities by employing prevalently historical and philological methods and those who thought it possible to write a history of the mind outlining the evolution of ways of thinking that had produced the modern mentality Dr Chimisso situates the key French scholars in their historical context and shows how their ideas and agendas were indissolubly linked with their social and institutional positions such as their political and religious allegiances their status in academia and their familial situation The author employs a vast range of original research using philosophical and scientific texts as well as archive documents correspondence and seminar minutes from the period covered to recreate the milieu in which these relatively neglected scholars made advances in the history of philosophy and science and produced
