experience and the way in which it relates to our reading of texts of all kinds The concept of the well read game exists at the convergence of literary media and play theories specifically the works of Louise Rosenblatt s reader response theory Brian Upton s situational game theory Tracy Fullerton s playcentric design theory and Bernie DeKoven s well played game philosophy Each of these theories from their own perspective challenges notions of a separate objective or authorial meaning in a text and underscores the richness that arises from the varied responses of readers who coauthor the meaning of each text through their active engagement with it When taken together these theories point to a richer understanding of what a game is and how we might better value our experiences with games to become more thoughtful readers of their essential meanings

Music and Sonic Environments in Video Games Kate Galloway,Elizabeth Hambleton,2024-11-06 Music and Sonic Environments in Video Games brings together a range of perspectives that explore how music and sound in video games interact with virtual and real environments often in innovative and unexpected ways Drawing on a range of game case studies and disciplinary perspectives the contributors consider the sonic environment in games as its own storytelling medium Highlighting how dynamic video game soundscapes respond to players movements engage them in collaborative composition and actively contribute to worldbuilding the chapters discuss topics including genre conventions around soundscape design how sonic environments shape players perceptions how game sound and music model ecological processes and nonhuman relationships and issues of cultural and geographic representation Together the essays in this volume bring game music and sound into the environmental humanities and transform our understanding of sonic environments as an essential part of storytelling in interactive media Engaging a wide variety of game genres and communities of play this book will be of interest to students and scholars of music media studies critical game studies popular culture and sound studies
