

Glory Movie Questions

1. How does the attitude of Colonel Robert Gould Shaw toward African-Americans change and why?

Colonel Shaw's attitude toward African-Americans changes over the course of the movie. At first, he is a white supremacist who believes that African-Americans are inferior to white people. However, as he spends more time with the 54th Massachusetts Infantry, he begins to see them as individuals and not just as a race. This change in attitude is what allows him to lead the regiment with respect and dignity.

2. What differences exist among the black soldiers who make up the 54th Massachusetts Infantry? What does this tell you about the different experiences of blacks in 19th-century America? What about their regions of origin, former status (enslaved), and educational background?

The 54th Massachusetts Infantry was a regiment of African-American soldiers who fought in the American Civil War. The regiment was made up of men from different parts of the country, including the North and South. Some of the men were former slaves, while others were free men. The regiment was led by Colonel Robert Gould Shaw, a white man who believed in the equality of all people.

3. What attitudes did white soldiers have about the 54th? Did these attitudes change and why?

At first, the white soldiers in the 54th were very hostile to the African-American soldiers. They believed that the African-American soldiers were inferior to them and that they were not worthy of being in the same regiment as them. However, as the white soldiers spent more time with the African-American soldiers, they began to change their attitudes. They began to see the African-American soldiers as individuals and not just as a race.

4. Were blacks treated equally to whites in the Union army? Explain.

No, blacks were not treated equally to whites in the Union army. They were paid less than white soldiers and they were not allowed to hold the same positions as white soldiers. However, the 54th Massachusetts Infantry was a regiment of African-American soldiers who fought in the American Civil War. The regiment was led by Colonel Robert Gould Shaw, a white man who believed in the equality of all people.

5. What is significant about Colonel Shaw's decision to refuse pay for himself?

Colonel Shaw's decision to refuse pay for himself was significant because it showed that he was willing to sacrifice for the African-American soldiers. He believed that the African-American soldiers were worthy of the same pay as white soldiers and that he was not worthy of the same pay as them.

6. Did that incident end as you expected? What feelings/arguments come over you tell, why?

The incident ended as I expected. I was expecting that the African-American soldiers would be paid the same as the white soldiers. However, they were not. This was because the white soldiers believed that the African-American soldiers were inferior to them and that they were not worthy of the same pay as them. This was a very disappointing outcome for the African-American soldiers and for Colonel Shaw.
