Oxford,1911 Access to Scientific Research David J. Brown,2015-11-13 The debate about access to scientific research raises questions about the current effectiveness of scholarly communication processes This book explores from an independent point of view the current state of the STM publishing market new publishing technologies and business models as well as the information habit of researchers the politics of research funders and the demand for scientific research as a public good The book also investigates the democratisation of science including how the information needs of knowledge workers outside academia can be embraced in future The City Record New York (N.Y.),1920 Soviet SCI_BERIA

Ksenia Tatarchenko,2024-10-03 At first glance the Novosibirsk Scientific Center or Akademgorodok appears as an outlier in academic excellence This science city is renowned for a preeminent university dozens of research institutes and a thriving technopark At home it is an emblem of Russian innovation abroad it is often portrayed as a potential threat a breeding ground of cyber soldiers Though Siberia has been the main source of post 1991 Russian carbon revenues its soviet history and cold war legacy of internationalism demonstrates that territorial and scientific dimensions interlocked the moment the Siberian Branch of the Soviet Academy of Sciences was created in 1957 Drawing on a wide range of previously unexplored archives Soviet SCI_BERIA focuses on how the post Stalinist Siberia was redefined and represented through the ideal of rational development the late socialist innovation practices and the relationship between experts and the state It offers a fresh insight into the transition from Soviet to post Soviet Akademgorodok In doing so Tatarchenko not only fosters a conversation between history area studies and science studies but also sheds new light on Soviet modernity and the limits of its transformative projects

Teacher Education through Active Engagement Lori Beckett,2013-12-04 Teacher Education through Active Engagement identifies and addresses a contemporary issue the ways in which teaching and teacher education are articulated by politicians civil servants business leaders and educational entrepreneurs intent on profit making in the current global neoliberal policy context This is often characterised by narrow and ill conceived ideas about teacher characteristics and competences recruiting and fast tracking graduates from elsewhere into the profession the reform of teacher training with less emphasis on theory and academic study a narrow focus on teachers core skills and the promotion of training in model teaching schools In this book contributors challenge this conceptualisation and demonstrate practitioners necessary intellectual activity to wrest back professional control By drawing on practice focused research carried out in sites of educational policy and practice each chapter exemplifies for teachers student teachers and teacher educators the sort of knowledge work to coordinate a professional reply to non educationalists who dictate the terms of teaching and teacher education The book provides directions for encouraging critical thinking analytical skills and political activism which consider the needs and interests of diverse children and young people in real classrooms real schools and real communities Illustrated throughout with practice focused research and drawing on the historical case of Winifred Mercier and her colleagues at the City of Leeds training college who challenged the establishment to leave a legacy of professional control the book will appeal to practitioners academics and researchers in the fields of teacher education and education studies

Pedagogy for

Technology Education in Secondary Schools P. John Williams, David Barlex, 2020-05-21 This book explores pedagogy appropriate for the secondary school technology education classroom. It covers the dimensions of pedagogy for technology with scholarly research including information strongly related to practice. The book discusses the nature of technology courses in secondary schools across various jurisdictions and considers how they might be viewed with regard to different epistemological frameworks. The writing is informed by but not limited to research and strongly related to practice with acknowledged experts in the field of technology education contributing chapters supported by evidence from technology education research or other fields. The authors speculate on pedagogical possibilities in their areas of expertise in order to consider pedagogical possibilities and develop a view of where pedagogy for technology education should move and how teachers might respond in the way they develop their practice.

Imagination for Inclusion Derek Bland, 2016-02-12 Imagination for Inclusion offers a reconsideration of the ways in which imagination engages and empowers learners across the education spectrum from primary to adult levels and in all subject areas. Imagination as a natural expedient and exciting learning tool should be central to any approach to developing and implementing curriculum but is increasingly undervalued as learners progress through the education system. This disregards not only imagination's potential but its paramount place in informing truly inclusive approaches to teaching and learning. This book presents a new theory of imagination and includes discussion about its application to teaching and learning to increase the engagement of disaffected students and reinvigorate their relationships with curriculum content. Chapters include key ideas and discussion surrounding the benefits of introducing imaginative practices into the classroom for learners from a range of marginalised backgrounds such as young people with disabilities and adult learners from socio-economically disadvantaged environments. In exploring imagination in the practice of inclusive education, the book includes chapters from researchers and practitioners in education who have fresh ideas about how learners and teachers have benefited from introducing imaginative pedagogies. The diverse collection featuring writers with backgrounds from early childhood to adult education will be essential reading for academics and researchers in the fields of education, inclusive education, social policy, professional development, teacher education, and creativity. It will be of particular interest to current and pre-service teachers who want to develop inclusive practice and increase the engagement of all students with formal education.
