

A woman's face is the central focus, looking directly at the viewer with a serene expression. She has green eyes and rosy cheeks. Her hair is dark and voluminous, adorned with several large, brown pinecones and small pink flowers. The background is a soft, ethereal blend of pink, purple, and blue, with a bright light source on the right side. In the bottom right corner, there is a small, dark silhouette of a tree.

Binheim, Charles A. Elvin, 1928 Washington Irving's Critique of American Culture J. Woodrow McCree, 2021-06-24 Washington Irving's Critique of American Culture Sketching a Vision of World Citizenship challenges long standing views of Washington Irving He has been portrayed as writing in the 18th century style of Addison and Goldsmith without having much substance of his own Irving has also been accused of being insufficiently American and adrift in an identity crisis The author argues that Irving addressed the American cultural context very extensively he was a writer of substance who articulated an ethic of world citizenship that was found in the philosophy of ancient Greek cynics and stoics This ethic was united with a love of picturesque travel which emphasized variety and texture in experience resulting in an extraordinary affirmation of the value of cultural diversity in the new Republic Irving was in fact a liminal figure straddling Romantic and neoclassical modes of writing and acting The author draws attention to Irving s success as a writer in the pictorial mode Irving also expressed a critique of cultural loss and environmental destruction like that articulated by the artist Thomas Cole The work embraces an interdisciplinary approach where insights from philosophy religion art history and social history shed light on an underestimated writer     A Natural History of Western Trees Donald Culross Peattie,1991 One of two genuine classics of American nature writing now in paperback the other is A Natural History of Trees of Eastern and Central North America
