

Abstract: Staphylococcus aureus strains isolated from 742 patients in 1999 and 2000 in the Department of Infectious Diseases, University Hospital Bonn, Germany. The strains were tested for sensitivity to 14 antimicrobials. The results are compared with the results of a study performed in 1997. The results show a high degree of resistance to all antimicrobials tested. The resistance to methicillin, vancomycin, and rifampin was particularly high. The results of the study performed in 1997 are also presented.
