This Ain't Chicago Zandria F. Robinson, 2014 When Zandria Robinson returned home to interview African Americans in Memphis she was often greeted with some version of the caution I hope you know this ain t Chicago In this important new work Robinson critiques ideas of black identity constructed through a northern lens and situates African Americans as central shapers of contemporary southern culture Analytically separating black southerners from their migrating cousins fictive kin and white counterparts Robinson demonstrates how place intersects with race class gender and regional identities and differences Robinson grounds her work in Memphis the first big city heading north out of the Mississippi Delta Although Memphis sheds light on much about the South Robinson does not suggest that the region is monolithic Instead she attends to multiple Souths noting the distinctions between southern places Memphis neither Old South nor New South sits at the intersections of rural and urban soul and post soul and civil rights and post civil rights representing an ongoing conversation with the varied incarnations of the South past and present

The Social Construction of Educational Leadership Anna Hicks McFadden, Penny Smith, 2004 Most historical and theoretical work on school administration choice has focused on the importance of race and class with increased attention to gender during the past two decades Rarely has geography been a consideration and when it appears at all it is used only to distinguish the unique conditions of urban school settings The Social Construction of Educational Leadership Southern Appalachian Ceilings addresses decisions about who is chosen to lead public schools and how they do it Using their research on senior level public school leaders in the southern mountains of North Carolina as a representative case study the authors construct an argument for a reconsideration of the role of place both in decisions about who becomes a school leader and in how those leaders behave professionally The authors describe the changes in a leadership system grounded in race class geographic and gender preferences that dating back to colonial
