Presidential Assassinations Charles River Editors,2025-05-01 Until April 14 1865 John Wilkes Booth was one of the most famous actors of his time and President Abraham Lincoln had even watched him perform But his most significant performance at a theater did not take place on the stage That night Booth became one of history s most infamous assassins when he assassinated President Lincoln at Ford s Theatre in Washington D C Booth was a member of the prominent 19th century Booth theatrical family from Maryland and by the 1860s was a well known actor But he was also a Confederate sympathizer who dabbled in espionage and he was increasingly outraged at the Lincoln Administration Although Robert E Lee s Army of Northern Virginia had surrendered days earlier Booth believed the war was not yet over because Confederate

General Joseph E Johnston's army was still fighting the Union Army so he and his group of conspirators plotted to kill Lincoln and other top officials in a bid to decapitate the federal government and help the South. James Garfield went on to narrowly edge Winfield Scott Hancock in the 1880 election and Guiteau, harboring delusions of grandeur, believed he had helped tip the scales in Garfield's favor. As such, he believed that he was entitled to a post in Garfield's nascent administration, perhaps even an ambassadorship, and he continued to rack up debts while operating under the assumption that he would soon have the government salary to pay them back. However, despite lobbying around Republican headquarters in New York City and even approaching Cabinet members, no post was forthcoming for the troubled man. Eventually, in May 1881, Secretary of State James Blaine told him to never show up again. Enraged by the perceived slight, Guiteau bought a revolver and plotted to kill the president. He got his chance on July 2, 1881, at a railroad station, shooting Garfield in the back twice and bragging to the authorities, "I am a Stalwart of the Stalwarts. Arthur is president now. In reality, Garfield would live for nearly 3 more months, and the poor standards of medical care in the 1880s would end up being responsible for the fact he did not survive wounds that he would've survived at the end of the 19th century. Indeed, Guiteau would cite medical malpractice at trial, stating, "I deny the killing if your honor please. We admit the shooting. President James Garfield had been assassinated just 20 years earlier, but McKinley didn't worry about presidential security or his own safety, and that was the case in Buffalo. McKinley's insistence on greeting the public and shaking hands allowed Czolgosz to walk up to him on September 6, 1901, at a public reception in the Temple of Music on the expo grounds and shoot him point blank with one bullet grazing the president and another lodging in his abdomen. In the aftermath of the shooting, as Czolgosz was beaten and seized by the crowd, he uttered, "I done my duty. For his part, McKinley said, "He didn't know, poor fellow, what he was doing. He couldn't have known. Despite being president, McKinley's medical services were shoddy, and given the still primitive medical standards of the early 20th century, gunshots to the abdomen often brought death. One of the best-known aspects of the assassination is that Thomas Edison's x-ray machine was on hand and may have been used to try to locate the bullet that doctors couldn't find, but for reasons that remain unknown, the x-ray machine was not used. November 22, 1963, started as a typical Friday, and many Americans were unaware that President Kennedy was even heading to Dallas, Texas. John and Jackie arrived in Dallas in the morning with Texas Governor John Connally alongside them, and Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson due to arrive later to meet them there. The Kennedys and the Connallys intended to participate in public events later in the day.
