Business and Government Relations in Africa Robert A. Dibia, 2017-07-06 This book endeavors to take the conceptualization of the relationship between business, government, and development in African countries to a new level. In the twenty-first century, the interests and operations of government and business inevitably intersect all over the African continent. No government, federal or state, can afford to ignore the needs of business. But what are these needs? How does business express its needs to government, and what institutions organize government-business relations in African countries? How should government regulate business, or should it choose to let the markets rule? Government and Business Relations in Africa brings together many of sub-Saharan African leading scholars to address these critical questions. Business and Government Relations in Africa examines the key players in the game: federal and state governments and business groups, and the processes that govern the relationships between them. It looks at the regulatory regimes that have an impact on business and provides a number of case studies of the relationships between government and economic development around the African continent, highlighting different processes and practices. It shows the latest state of knowledge on the topic and will be of interest both to students at an advanced level, academics, and reflective practitioners. It addresses the topics with regard to business-government relations and will be of interest to researchers, academics, policymakers, and students in the fields of African politics, comparative politics, public policy, business, and politics, sustainable development, and sustainability, economic development, and managerial economics.

Peters,Susanne Maria Weber,2019-01-14 Organization and Newness Discourses and Ecologies of Innovation in the Creative University offers a view from a perspective of organizational education on the new which analyzes the production of the new within organizations in relation to the inherent learning processes Fundamental for this perspective is the question about the changeability of organizations especially when these are not viewed only as instrumentally established regulatory structures but rather as social constructs The contributions of this volume contour the complexity of newness in organization and form a bridge from critical analysis of imperative discourse of newness to programmatic pleas of an organizational pedagogy which is normative in nature for a reconfiguration of organizational and societal relationships The issue at hand shows how tightly the question about newness is constitutively woven into the self conception of organizational education and pedagogy Relationship Competence for Healthcare Management J.
