1. Most religions have been founded upon the notion that the physical, or material, world is transient. Such a view suggests that whatever we do in this life will have no permanent effects. This belief, and the philosophy behind it, has influenced many cultures and nations. Some have taken this notion to mean that we should live for the moment, while others have taken it to mean that we should live for the afterlife. Which view is more correct? Do you believe that the physical world is transient, and if so, how should we live? Do you believe that the physical world is permanent, and if so, how should we live? Do you believe that the physical world is both transient and permanent, and if so, how should we live? Do you believe that the physical world is neither transient nor permanent, and if so, how should we live?

2. The scientific revolution of the sixteenth century brought about a new way of thinking about the world. It was a time when people began to question the authority of the church and the government. This led to the development of new scientific theories and methods. Some of the most important scientists of this time were Galileo, Newton, and Darwin. Their work has shaped the way we think about the world today. Do you believe that the scientific revolution was a good thing? Do you believe that it was a bad thing? Do you believe that it was both good and bad? Do you believe that it was neither good nor bad? Do you believe that it was something else?
