Lau, 2004-06-17 1 The tenth anniversary of the LOPSTR symposium provided the incentive for this volume LOPSTR started in 1991 as a workshop on logic program synthesis and transformation but later it broadened its scope to logic based program development in general that is program development in computational logic and hence the title of this volume The motivating force behind LOPSTR has been the belief that declarative paradigms such as logic programming are better suited to program development tasks than traditional non declarative ones such as the imperative paradigm Specification synthesis transformation or specialization analysis debugging and verification can all be given logical foundations thus providing a unifying framework for the whole development process In the past 10 years or so such a theoretical framework has indeed begun to emerge Even tools have been implemented for analysis verification and specialization However it is fair to say that so far the focus has largely been on programming in the small So the future challenge is to apply or extend these techniques to programming in the large in order to tackle software engineering in the real world Returning to this volume

our aim is to present a collection of papers that reflect significant research efforts over the past 10 years. These papers cover the whole development process: specification, synthesis, analysis, transformation, and specialization, as well as semantics and systems.

Logic Program Synthesis and Transformation Norbert E. Fuchs, 2003-05-20 This volume contains the papers from the Seventh International Workshop on Logic Program Synthesis and Transformation LOPSTR 97 that took place in Leuven, Belgium, on July 10-12, 1997, back-to-back with the Fourteenth International Conference on Logic Programming ICLP 97. Both ICLP and LOPSTR were organised by the K.U. Leuven Department of Computer Science. LOPSTR 97 was sponsored by Compulog Net and by the Flanders Research Network on Declarative Methods in Computer Science. LOPSTR 97 had 39 participants from 13 countries. There were two invited talks by Wolfgang Bibel, Darmstadt, on 'A multi-level approach to program synthesis' and by Henning Christiansen, Roskilde, on 'Implicit program synthesis by a reversible meta-interpretor'. Extended versions of both talks appear in this volume. There were 19 technical papers accepted for presentation at LOPSTR 97 out of 33 submissions. Of these, 15 appear in extended versions in this volume. Their topics range over the fields of program synthesis, program transformation, program analysis, tabling, metaprogramming, and inductive logic programming.

Using Applied Mathematical Models for Business Transformation Trad, Antoine, Kalpi?, Damir, 2019-12-20 Traditional business practices have been left behind due to the increased use of data analytics and information technology in companies worldwide. This development has led to businesses implementing transformative projects that use these new technologies in their decision-making systems. Altering the entire architecture of a company is a daunting task; however, researchers are finding methods through applied mathematics that can make it easier on companies. Implementing analytical models into current business processes is vital for professionals across the globe. Using Applied Mathematical Models for Business Transformation is an essential reference source that discusses the advancement of decision-making systems in business environments with the use of applied mathematics, algorithms, and information technology. Featuring research on topics such as decision-making systems, critical success factors, and global enterprise architecture, this book is ideally designed for project managers, financial analysts, business strategists, software engineers, technical architects, students, researchers, and educators seeking coverage on the transformation of business practices using applied mathematics and information technology.
