Affective and Social Signals for HRI Hatice Gunes,Ginevra Castellano,Bilge Mutlu,2020-02-04 Designing robots with socio emotional skills is a challenging research topic still in its infancy These skills are important for robots to be able to provide not only physical but also social support to human users and to engage in and sustain long term interactions with them in a variety of application domains that require human robot interaction including healthcare education entertainment manufacturing and many others The availability of commercial robotic platforms and developments in collaborative academic research provide us a positive outlook however the capabilities of current social robots are quite limited The main challenge is understanding the underlying mechanisms of the humans in responding to and interacting with real life situations and how to model these mechanisms for the embodiment of naturalistic human inspired behaviors via robots To address this challenge successfully requires an understanding of the essential components of social interaction including nonverbal behavioral cues

such as interpersonal distance body position body posture arm and hand gestures head and facial gestures gaze silences vocal outbursts and their dynamics To create truly intelligent social robots these nonverbal cues need to be interpreted to form an understanding of the higher level phenomena including first impression formation social roles interpersonal relationships focus of attention synchrony affective states emotions and personality and in turn defining optimal protocols and behaviors to express these phenomena through robotic platforms in an appropriate and timely manner Achieving this goal requires the fields of psychology nonverbal behavior vision social signal processing affective computing and HRI to constantly interact with one another This Research Topic aims to foster such interactions and collaborations by bringing together the latest works and developments from across a range of research groups and disciplines working in these fields The Research Topic is a collection of 14 articles that span across five research themes Three articles co authored by Terada and Takeuchi Jung et al and Kennedy et al explore the design of social and affective cues for robots and investigate their effects on human robot interaction Mirnig et al Bremner et al and Strait et al investigate people s perceptions of robots in different settings and scenarios such as when robots make errors Articles by Lee et al Leite et al and Heath et al investigate the factors that shape dialogic interaction with robots such as interaction context The articles under the theme social and affective therapy by Rouaix et al Rudovic et al and Matsuda et al report on how individuals from clinical populations such as those with dementia autism and other pervasive developmental disorders PDDs interact with robots in therapeutic scenarios Finally Mikl si et al and Durantin et al offer new perspectives in human robot interaction with a focus on reframing social interaction and human robot relationships We are excited about sharing this rich collection with the scientific community and about its contributions to the human robot interaction literature

A Fine Romance Candice Bergen,2015-04-07 In this New York Times bestseller acclaimed actress Candice Bergen shows how to do a memoir right The self possessed witty and down to earth voice that made Bergen s first memoir a hit when it was published in 1984 has only been deepened by life s surprises The New York Times Book Review Candice Bergen is unflinchingly honest The Washington Post and in A Fine Romance she describes her first marriage at age thirty four to famous French director Louis Malle her overpowering love for her daughter Chloe the unleashing of her inner comic with Murphy Brown her trauma over Malle s death her joy at finding new love and her pride at watching Chloe blossom In her decidedly nontraditional marriage to the insatiably curious Louis Bergen takes readers on world travels to the sets where each made films Pregnant with Chloe at age thirty nine this mature primigravida also recounts a journey through motherhood that includes plundering the Warner Bros costume closets for Halloween getups and never leaving her ever expanding menagerie out of the fun She offers priceless behind the scenes looks at Murphy Brown from caterwauling with Aretha Franklin to the surreal experience of becoming headline news when Dan Quayle took exception to her character becoming a single mother Bergen tackles familiar rites of passage with moving honesty the rigors of caring for a spouse in his final illness getting older and falling in love again after she was tricked into a blind date By the time the last page is turned we re all likely to be wishing Bergen herself funny insightful self deprecating flawed and not especially concerned about that and slugging her way through her older years with bemused determination was living next door USA TODAY
