The Practice of Econometric Theory Charles G. Renfro, 2009-06-29 Econometric theory as presented in textbooks and the econometric literature generally is a somewhat disparate collection of findings Its essential nature is to be a set of demonstrated results that increase over time each logically based on a specific set of axioms or assumptions yet at every moment rather than a finished work these inevitably form an incomplete body of knowledge The practice of econometric theory consists of selecting from applying and evaluating this literature so as to test its applicability and range The creation development and use of computer software has led applied economic research into a new age This book describes the history of econometric computation from 1950 to the present day based upon an interactive survey involving the collaboration of the many econometricians who have designed and developed this software It identifies each of the econometric software packages that are made available to and used by economists and econometricians worldwide

Patterns of Technological and Non-Technological Innovation in the Italian

Food and Food Retail Industries Eleonora Bartoloni, Maurizio Baussola, 2013-11-17T00:00:00+01:00 Innovation patterns in the food and food retail industries have been analyzed and compared with the more general patterns found in the manufacturing and wholesale retail sectors We find that the food industry despite its relevance within manufacturing is still characterized by a lower propensity to innovate This fact is particularly relevant if one considers that technological innovation may have significant effects on firms performance and thus it may affect their future growth perspectives This is crucial in the current Italian economic framework which is characterized by a general decrease in internal demand and by a sharp decrease in families real disposable income In this context food industry firms may be able to expand their production by creating new opportunities with new and better goods and or by increasing their export capacity We suggest that technological and non technological patterns of innovation should be considered simultaneously as the former typically implies the acquisition of internal to the firm capabilities brought about by other activities aimed at improving the internal organization or at gaining a better understanding of market evolution
