Scopes' conviction for teaching Charles Darwin's theory of evolution to a high school science class, contrary to a Tennessee state law that prohibited the teaching of anything besides creationism.

The play starts out with two pivotal characters named Howard and Melinda Karpis out at the lawn of Hildabrook courthouse. Howard looking for work after a large rainstorm. Howard tells Melinda, "When the whole world was covered with water, there was nothing" but wind and clouds of jelly. And you and your whole family was normal!"

We are then introduced to Rachel, who goes to the courthouse to visit colleague Bert Cates in jail. Mr. Meeker gladly let them talk while keeping Rachel's promise of not telling her father. After a small conversation between Bert and Rachel, we find out Bert was jailed for teaching Darwinian theory in a public high school. This is based on John Scopes,

Summer for the Gods Edward J. Larson, 2008-07-31. The Pulitzer Prize-winning history of the Scopes Trial and the battle over evolution and creation in America's schools. In the summer of 1925, the sleepy hamlet of Dayton, Tennessee, became the setting for one of the twentieth century's most contentious courtroom dramas, pitting William Jennings Bryan and the anti-Darwinists against a teacher named John Scopes, represented by Clarence Darrow and the ACLU in a famous debate over science, religion, and their place in public education. That trial marked the start of a battle that continues to this day in cities and states throughout the country. Edward Larson's classic Summer for the Gods, winner of the Pulitzer Prize in History, is the single most authoritative account of this pivotal event. An afterword assesses the state of the battle between creationism and evolution and points the
