Information Ecologies Bonnie A. Nardi, Vicki O'Day, 2000-02-28 A call for informed responsible engagement with information technology at the local level The common rhetoric about technology falls into two extreme categories uncritical acceptance or blanket rejection Claiming a middle ground Bonnie Nardi and Vicki O Day call for responsible informed engagement with technology in local settings which they call information ecologies An information ecology is a system of people practices technologies and values in a local environment Nardi and O Day encourage the reader to become more aware of the ways people and technology are interrelated They draw on their empirical research in offices libraries schools and hospitals to show how people can engage their own values and commitments while using technology Innovation and the Creative Process Lars Fuglsang, 2008-01-01 After phenomenology and feminism the concept of care is taken forward to conceive innovation as an interactive process requiring diversity and collectivity A fresh look at innovation is grounded in the long standing experience of the Roskilde group and it takes the readers into an intriguing voyage in practical creativity Silvia Gherardi Dipartimento di Sociologia e Ricerca Sociale Italy It is not an easy task to be innovative in the large and increasing field of innovation studies We should therefore thank and welcome the Roskilde School for achieving such a difficult task This book provides a new and promising vision of innovation which is metaphorically called innovation with care This new theory draws upon a sociological perspective in order to open up the black box of the organization It brings interacting people and social process to the forefront of innovation phenomena Innovation and the Creative Process explores innovation with care illustrating that it is possible to integrate in the innovation theory a wide range of specialized and non specialized actors activities and forms of business and social innovations Following the Schumpeterian tradition it provides a more comprehensive notion of innovation and enlarges the scope of innovation theory This book represents a fruitful approach to innovation which academics private and public practitioners should consider with much care Fa z Gallouj University of Lille France This book explores new frameworks and methods of understanding and analysing innovation These are set against a backdrop of innovation with care which is seen as a phenomenon that takes place among many actors with different perspectives ideas and cultures that must be carefully woven together in order to achieve the benefits of innovation The new perspectives presented by the contributors will be important in encouraging successful innovation across sectors organizations and people They examine how people and organizations deal with the tensions and paradoxes in the innovative process between creativity and innovation variation and selection and sense and strategy making The book also includes a sociological approach to innovation as a complement to economic perspectives in order to better understand how people can benefit from innovation in a number of interesting private and public cases To benefit from innovation it concludes people depend less on formal roles and formal organization than on a caring approach that enables them to deal with and interpret evolutions across people organizations and sectors This highly original innovative book will provide fascinating reading for a diverse audience including academics researchers policymakers and managers with an interest in innovation organization studies institutional theory and more generally business and management

Negotiating Digital Heritage Infrastructures Quoc-Tan Tran,2025-09-18 Negotiating Digital Heritage Infrastructures examines the infrastructural qualities of museum work that influence the ability of cultural institutions to support participatory and socially inclusive missions Drawing on data gathered in Scotland Sweden and Germany and taking an infrastructure studies approach the book focuses on the socio technical negotiations underpinning the everyday practices of museum staff The book examines the work that is done behind the scenes including the everyday tasks of collecting archiving displaying museum objects and retrieving information Tran argues that while the technical components of infrastructure are necessary for memory making and knowledge production it is the social part of museum infrastructure that enables more open and decentralised modes of memory making The book shows how these negotiations affect the ability of museum infrastructures to accommodate and support growth and development expanding access and establishing modes of connection to external partners and services It illuminates the less visible practices of museums which nevertheless directly affect their more public outward facing activities Negotiating Digital Heritage Infrastructures will be of interest to academics and students who are engaged in the study of museums and heritage It will be particularly useful to those with an interest in public participation social inclusion heritage management the digitisation of collections data aggregation and human centred design approaches Usability

Rethinking Technology in Schools Primer Vanessa Elaine Domine, 2009 Among the many challenges facing public schooling in the United States is the often irrelevant usage of technology in the classroom in ways that support the textbook and computer industries more than student learning and achievement This primer reframes the longstanding debate about instructional technology in school classrooms and challenges the reader to think more critically and conscientiously about the fundamental communication and technological processes that mediate learning and ultimately define education The primer offers educators at all levels a three dimensional map for exploring the philosophical pedagogical and practical uses of technology to serve rather than subvert the public purposes of education in a democracy The Education Ecology of

Universities Robert A. Ellis, Peter Goodyear, 2019-03-26 Many universities around the world are finding that the structures and processes they have put in place to further their educational missions are being tested by rapidly changing circumstances These changes involve new pedagogies new course designs new technologies and updating of the physical campus reflecting diversifying student needs growing student numbers increasing competition and more demanding stakeholder expectations The Education Ecology of Universities examines these issues starting with the challenges identified by university leaders who have responsibility for education digital and campus planning Sharing an analysis of in depth interviews with more than 50 leaders it identifies a range of conceptual and procedural gaps that undermine the full development and alignment of education digital and campus strategies The second half of the book provides practical ideas for taking a more holistic indeed ecological approach to understanding and improving university learning environments

Setting out a case for a new applied science of educational ecology this book offers foundational concepts and theoretical perspectives introducing methods for analysing and evaluating teaching and learning ecosystems It will be of interest to anyone who wants better ways of understanding how local systems function and can be improved It is a must read text for all leaders and researchers in education and indeed for anyone concerned with the future of higher education A Psychology of User Experience Phil Turner, 2017-12-02 It is well established that while cognitive psychology provides a sound foundation for an understanding of our interactions with digital technology this is no longer sufficient to make sense of how we use and experience the personal relational and ubiquitous technologies that pervade everyday life This book begins with a consideration of the nature of experience itself and the user experience UX of digital technology in particular offering a new broader definition of the term This is elaborated through a wide ranging and rigorous review of what are argued to be the three core UX elements These are involvement including shared sense making familiarity appropriation and being with technologies affect including emotions with and about technology impressions feelings and mood and aesthetics including embodied aesthetics and neuroaesthetics Alongside this new insights are introduced into how and why much of our current use of digital technology is simply idling or killing time A particular feature of the book is a thorough treatment of parallel and sometimes competing accounts from differing academic traditions Overall the discussion considers both foundational and more recent theoretical and applied perspectives from social psychology evolutionary psychology folk psychology neuroaesthetics neuropsychology the philosophy of technology design and the fine arts This broad scope will be enlightening and stimulating for anyone concerned in understanding UX A Psychology of User Experience stands as a companion text to the author's HCI Redux text which discusses the contemporary treatment of cognition in human computer interaction
