1. GENOTYPE refers to the combination of alleles that an individual possesses. An individual has two alleles for each trait. For example, you have two alleles for the trait of eye color. One allele may be for brown eyes and the other for blue eyes. The combination of alleles that you have is your genotype. The phenotype is the observable trait that results from the genotype. For example, you have brown eyes because you have two alleles for brown eyes. The genotype is the genetic makeup of an individual, and the phenotype is the observable trait that results from the genotype.

As you read, underline important concepts and discuss them with your class.
