Rothman, 2012-04-01 Admissions rates of 6 percent Kids applying to thirty two colleges Sixteen year olds with more impressive resumes than Fortune 500 CEOs Has the nation lost its mind Why yes it has J D Rothman the Neurotic Parent of blog fame takes readers on a hilarious satiric journey through today's insane college admissions process The vividly illustrated book takes you from the Itsy Bitsy Fiske Guide and Junior Kumon Tips for Preschoolers through Rejection Letters from the Heart and Bed Bath Bye Bye Educational Opportunity in an Urban American High School Patrick James McQuillan, 1997-11-20 This five year ethnographic study examines issues of educational opportunity at Russell High a multiethnic school in the city of Eastown Focusing on the beliefs and values of students teachers and administrators this study reveals how prevailing cultural beliefs the collective nature of the student population and the structure of the school system worked in concert albeit unintentionally to foster inequality To make such an argument this study draws on American cultural conceptions of individualism and adolescence exploring how these beliefs were manifested in classrooms in the efforts of two reform initiatives in a protest turned riot by African American students in spring 1969 in school assemblies and in local media and thereby reveals how and why Russell students experienced educational opportunity in similar ways for similar reasons and with similar outcomes Beyond exploring the cultural taken for granted at Russell High this study considers the implications of such understanding for promoting educational opportunity more equitably

Understanding the Working College Student Laura W. Perna, 2023-07-14 How appropriate for today and for the future are the policies and practices of higher education that largely assume a norm of traditional age students with minimal on campus or no work commitments Despite the fact that work is a fundamental part of life for nearly half of all undergraduate students with a substantial number of traditional dependent undergraduates in employment and working independent undergraduates averaging 34 5 hours per week little attention has been given to how working influences the integration and engagement experiences of students who work especially those who work full time or how the benefits and costs of working differ between traditional age students and adult students The high and increasing prevalence and intensity of working among both dependent and independent students raises a number of important questions for public policymakers college administrators faculty academic advisors student services and financial aid staff and institutional and educational researchers including Why do so many college students work so many hours What are the characteristics of undergraduates who work What are the implications of working for students educational experiences and outcomes And how can public and institutional policymakers promote the educational success of undergraduate students who work This book offers the most complete and comprehensive conceptualization of the working college student available It provides a multi faceted picture of the characteristics experiences and challenges of working college students and a more complete understanding of the heterogeneity underlying the label undergraduates who work and the implications of working for undergraduate students educational experiences and outcomes The volume stresses the importance of recognizing the value and contribution of adult learners to higher education and takes issue with the appropriateness of the term non traditional itself both because of the prevalence of this group and because it allows higher education institutions to avoid considering changes that will meet the needs of this population including changes in course offerings course scheduling financial aid and pedagogy
