It feels like there's this pit inside my chest. It's like this virus lies dormant and it keeps feeding on — I don't know what it keeps feeding on because I feel like there's nothing left. I'm constantly looking at the world through a pane of glass and I'm shouting and shouting and nobody can hear me. But at the same time... I don't think I want them to.

I'm not sad. I feel vacant. Like, there's nothing left of me inside. I'm full of ... dust and soot and fog and the burnt pages of books I bought but never read... I'm pacified, I'm controlled by tiny little seeds of doubt that infest my body with fantasies, and — I'm not sure which parts of me are fact and which parts of me are fiction. I'm like Alice, falling into some terrifying Wonderland and all I want to do is wake up.

I'm so tired. There's nothing about me that I remember being beautiful. I can't remember the last time I laughed. I hate myself for tripping. And I hate myself for letting go. But most of all, I hate that I hate myself.
