As the United States begins to mobilize for war, the American people are called upon to do their part. They are asked to conserve resources, to support the war effort, and to maintain a sense of unity and purpose. They are asked to be patriotic and to follow the lead of their government. They are asked to be brave and to face the challenges of war with courage and determination. They are asked to be good and to treat others with kindness and respect. They are asked to be strong and to stand up for their beliefs. They are asked to be wise and to make the most of the opportunities that life offers. They are asked to be happy and to find joy in the simple things of life. They are asked to be peaceful and to seek understanding and harmony with all people. They are asked to be free and to live in a land where freedom is a reality. They are asked to be Americans and to be proud of the country they love.

Americans Join the War Effort

The Japanese had attacked Pearl Harbor with the intention of starting a war. They had hoped that the United States would be so shocked and so angry that they would not fight back. But the Americans did not let them win. They fought back with all the power they could. They fought back with the ships of the United States Navy, with the planes of the United States Army, and with the soldiers of the United States Army. They fought back with the courage and the determination of the American people. They fought back with the strength and the unity of the American people. They fought back with the love and the devotion of the American people. They fought back with the spirit and the will of the American people. They fought back with the faith and the hope of the American people. They fought back with the courage and the determination of the American people. They fought back with the strength and the unity of the American people. They fought back with the love and the devotion of the American people. They fought back with the spirit and the will of the American people. They fought back with the faith and the hope of the American people.
