How Much is an Ecosystem Worth? ,2005-01-01 The international community has committed itself to achieve by 2010 a significant reduction of the current rate of biodiversity loss at the global regional and national levels Yet despite growing awareness and major efforts in all countries the latest evidence indicates that biodiversity continues to be lost at a terrifying pace resulting in what some call the greatest mass extinction since dinosaurs roamed the planet 65 million years ago A range of methods have been developed to value ecosystems and the services they provide as well as the costs of conservation The methods available are increasingly sensitive and robust but they are often incorrectly used One reason is poor understanding of the purposes of valuation and what questions it can or cannot answer As a result decision makers may get misleading guidance on the value of ecosystems and their conservation In this context the Bank IUCN The World Conservation Union and the Nature Conservancy have worked together to clarify the aims and uses of economic valuation focusing on the types of questions that valuation can answer and the type of valuation that is best suited to each purpose How Much is an Ecosystem Worth is the result of that cooperation It aims to provide guidance on how economic valuation can be used to address specific policy relevant questions about nature conservation
