Navigating Model Minority Stereotypes Rupam Saran,2015-08-11 Though Asian Indians are typically thought of as a model minority not much is known about the school experiences of their children Positive stereotyping of these immigrants and their children often masks educational needs and issues creates class divides within the Indian American community and triggers stress for many Asian Indian students This volume examines second generation America born and 1 5 generation foreign born Asian Indians as they try to balance peer culture home life and academics It explores how through the acculturation process these children either take advantage of this positive stereotype or refute their stereotyped ethnic image and move to downward mobility Focusing on migrant experiences of the Indian diasporas in the United States this volume brings attention to highly motivated Asian Indian students who are overlooked because of their cultural dispositions and outlooks on schooling and those students who are more likely to underachieve It highlights the assimilation of Asian Indian students in mainstream society and their understandings of Americanization social inequality diversity and multiculturalism

Maternal Employment and Child Health Yana van der Meulen Rodgers,2011-01-01 As women s labor force participation has risen around the globe scholarly and policy discourse on the ramifications of this employment growth has intensified This book explores the links between maternal employment and child health using an international perspective that is grounded in economic theory and rigorous empirical methods Women s labor market activity affects child health largely because their paid work raises household income which strengthens families abilities to finance healthcare needs and nutritious food however time away from children could counteract some of the benefits of higher socioeconomic status that spring from maternal employment New evidence based on data from nine South and Southeast Asian countries illuminates the potential tradeoff between the benefits and challenges families contend with in the face of women's labor market activity This book provides new original evidence on links between maternal employment and children's health using data associated with three indicators of children's nutritional status birth size stunting and wasting Results support the implementation and enforcement of policy interventions that bolster women's advancement in the labor market and reduce undernutrition among children Scholars students policymakers and all those with an interest in nutritional science gender economics of the family or development economies will find the methodology and original results expounded here both useful and informative
