thinking and experience of an international group of eight distinguished economists on this changing function of government in the development process Many governments have withdrawn from direct involvement in certain sectors of the economy and have reduced their intervention and control in others most dramatically in the former centrally planned economies but also in developing countries and in advanced countries where markets are already pre eminent In this process it has been recognized that left entirely to their own devices markets may be either inadequate or inappropriate for a country s overall economic and social development Government has a vital role to play even in facilitating the effective functioning of markets to ensure the necessary infrastructure is in place to sustain macroeconomic stability to provide a framework for effective interaction with the international economy It also has a responsibility to correct the market s inclinations in certain directions in particular to provide a fuller perspective on the future to give direction in critical sectors and importantly to fulfil a number of social objectives The challenges lie in identifying policies and selecting instruments that enable the government to fulfil these roles complementing the contribution of markets
