who have been recruited to care for the child while the middle generation goes off to work Investigating what life is really like with three generations in close quarters and using urban Xiamen as a backdrop the author shows how viewing the grandparents and parents as engaged in an intergenerational parenting coalition allows for a more dynamic understanding of both the pleasures and conflicts within adult relationships particularly when they are centred around raising a child Based on both survey data and ethnographic fieldwork the book also makes it clear that parenting is only half the story The children of course are the other Moreover these children not only have agency but constantly put it to work as a way to displace the burden of expectations and steady attention that comes with being an only child in contemporary urban China These lone tacticians as Goh calls them are not having an easy time and not all are living like spoiled children The reality is far more challenging for all three generations. The book will be of interest to those in family studies education psychology sociology Asian Studies and social work Advances in Child Development and Behavior Robert V. Child Vulnerability and Vulnerable Subjectivity Dagmar Kutsar, Mai Beilmann, Oliver Nahkur, 2024-07-29 This book explores child vulnerability in various contexts from a cross country comparative perspective It shows how vulnerability in childhood develops within subjects in relationships with other people other children parents specialists such as teachers social workers and judges how it is created by welfare health care education and justice systems and is empowered by multiple crises such as the COVID 19 pandemic wars and natural disasters The authors hope to enhance dialogue between childhood studies and children's rights studies through these discussions. The role of children's agency and autonomy including their right to participate in decision making processes related to their own life has a special emphasis in this book. Importantly the book discusses ethical considerations and challenges connected to the participation of vulnerable children in research. It also adds insights into domain based child vulnerability particularly through participatory action research with extremely vulnerable children with traumatic pasts in Estonian substitute care and Ukrainian children with refugee status in Estonia. The book thereby provides deep insights into the ways to increase child well being by decreasing vulnerabilities and building resilience. It combines approaches from psychology sociology law educational sciences social work and media studies and is an important resource for academics as well as practitioners and policy makers working on children's well being
