Engendering Violence in Papua New Guinea Margaret Jolly, Christine Stewart, Carolyn Brewer, 2012-07-01 This collection builds on previous works on gender violence in the Pacific but goes beyond some previous approaches to domestic violence or violence against women in analysing the dynamic processes of engendering violence in PNG Engendering refers not just to the sex of individual actors but to gender as a crucial relation in collective life and the massive social transformations ongoing in PNG conversion to Christianity the development of extractive industries the implanting of introduced models of justice and the law and the spread of HIV Hence the collection examines issues of troubled masculinities as much as battered women and tries to move beyond the black and white binaries of blaming either tradition or modernity as the primary cause of gender violence It relates original scholarly research in the villages and towns of PNG to questions of policy and practice and reveals the complexities and contestations in the local translation of concepts of human rights It will interest undergraduate and graduate students in gender studies and Pacific studies and those working on the policy and practice of combating gender violence in PNG and elsewhere examine the messy and dynamic realities of hybridity on the ground By critically exploring the power dynamics and the diverse actors ideas practices and sites that shape hybrid peacebuilding and development across time and space this book offers fresh insights to hybridity debates that will be of interest to both scholars and practitioners Hybridity has become an influential idea in peacebuilding and this volume will undoubtedly become the most influential collection on the idea Nuance and sophistication characterises this engagement with hybridity Professor John Braithwaite

million people every year and that number is expected to double by the year 2020 Despite its enormous toll on human health tobacco has been largely neglected by anthropologists Drinking Smoke combines an exhaustive search of historical materials on the introduction and spread of tobacco in the Pacific with extensive anthropological accounts of the ways Islanders have incorporated this substance into their lives The author uses a relatively new concept called a syndemic the synergistic interaction of two or more afflictions contributing to a greater burden of disease in a population to focus at once on the health of a community political and economic structures and the wider physical and social environment and ultimately provide an in depth analysis of smoking s negative health impact in Oceania In Drinking Smoke the idea of a syndemic is applied to the current health crisis in the Pacific where the number of deaths from coronary heart disease cancer diabetes and chronic obstructive pulmonary disease continues to rise and the case is made that smoking tobacco in the form of industrially manufactured cigarettes is the keystone of the contemporary syndemic in Oceania The author shows how tobacco consumption particularly cigarette smoking after World War II has become the central interstitial element of a syndemic that produces most of the morbidity and mortality Pacific Islanders suffer This syndemic is made up of a bundle of diseases and conditions a set of historical circumstances and events and social and health inequities most easily summed up as poverty He calls this the tobacco syndemic and argues that smoking is the crucial behavior the glue holding all of these diseases and conditions together Drinking Smoke is the first book length examination of the damaging tobacco syndemic in a specific world region It is a must read for scholars and students of anthropology Pacific studies history and economic globalization as well as for public health practitioners and those working in allied health fields More broadly the book will appeal to anyone concerned with disease interaction the social context of disease production and the full health consequences of the global promotional efforts of Big Tobacco
