Balaban, 2012-12-06 It was Faraday who in 1821 said that there are three necessary stages of useful research The first to begin it the second to end it and the third 1 to publish it

There has since indeed been so much research and publication that we have become increasingly alarmed by the galloping proliferation of scientific information produced in relation to the user's ability to retrieve and consume it effectively conveniently and creatively In 1948 to deal with this concern the Royal Society Scientific Information Conference held in London spanned the whole realm of scientific information Sir Robert Robinson President of the Royal Society in his opening address noted that the study of scientific information services in all its ramifications has enormous scope and the London conference dealt with scientific publication format editorial policy subject grouping organization abstracting reviews classification indexing and training of information officers It was about this time that information science began to develop more on the retrieval end so it seems logical that the first editors group founded in 1949 was ICSU AB the International Council of Scientific Unions Abstracting Board In 1958 the National Academy of Sciences International Conference of 2 Scientific Information in Washington limited its interests and expanded on the later phases of the life cycle of information storage and retrieval
