One American's Story

A young American boy, who was living in a small town in the United States, was very proud of his country. He was a very brave boy, and he was very smart. He was a very good student, and he was a very good athlete. He was a very good friend, and he was a very good leader. He was a very good person, and he was a very good citizen. He was a very good American, and he was a very good boy.

A Christmas Story

It was Christmas Eve, and the boy was sitting in his room, looking out the window. He was thinking about the Christmas story, and he was thinking about the people who were living in the town. He was thinking about the people who were poor, and the people who were rich. He was thinking about the people who were happy, and the people who were sad. He was thinking about the people who were good, and the people who were bad. He was thinking about the people who were kind, and the people who were cruel. He was thinking about the people who were brave, and the people who were cowardly. He was thinking about the people who were strong, and the people who were weak. He was thinking about the people who were wise, and the people who were foolish. He was thinking about the people who were honest, and the people who were dishonest. He was thinking about the people who were true, and the people who were false. He was thinking about the people who were good, and the people who were bad. He was thinking about the people who were kind, and the people who were cruel. He was thinking about the people who were brave, and the people who were cowardly. He was thinking about the people who were strong, and the people who were weak. He was thinking about the people who were wise, and the people who were foolish. He was thinking about the people who were honest, and the people who were dishonest. He was thinking about the people who were true, and the people who were false.

John F. Kennedy, President of the United States, with a picture of his son, John F. Kennedy Jr.

As the boy looked out the window, he saw the stars and stripes of the American flag. He saw the flag waving in the wind, and he saw the flag flying high in the sky. He saw the flag flying over the town, and he saw the flag flying over the world. He saw the flag flying over the people, and he saw the flag flying over the future. He saw the flag flying over the good, and he saw the flag flying over the bad. He saw the flag flying over the kind, and he saw the flag flying over the cruel. He saw the flag flying over the brave, and he saw the flag flying over the cowardly. He saw the flag flying over the strong, and he saw the flag flying over the weak. He saw the flag flying over the wise, and he saw the flag flying over the foolish. He saw the flag flying over the honest, and he saw the flag flying over the dishonest. He saw the flag flying over the true, and he saw the flag flying over the false.

Americans Join the War Effort

The Japanese had attacked Pearl Harbor, and the United States was at war. The American people were very angry, and they were very determined to win the war. They were very brave, and they were very smart. They were very good students, and they were very good athletes. They were very good friends, and they were very good leaders. They were very good people, and they were very good citizens. They were very good Americans, and they were very good boys.

NETosis 2: The Excitement Continues Mariana J. Kaplan,Marko Radic,Martin Herrmann,2017-12-28

NETosis a form of cell death that manifests by the release of decondensed chromatin to the extracellular space provides valuable insights into mechanisms and consequences of cellular demise Because extracellular chromatin can immobilize microbes the extended nucleohistone network was called a neutrophil extracellular trap NET and the process of chromatin release was proposed to serve an innate immune defense function Extracellular chromatin NETs were initially observed in studies of neutrophils and are most prominent in these types of granulocytes Subsequent studies showed that other granulocytes and in a limited way other cells of the innate immune response may also release nuclear chromatin following certain kinds of stimulation Variations of NETosis were noted with cells that remain temporarily motile after the release of chromatin Numerous stimuli for NETosis were discovered including bacterial breakdown products inflammatory stimuli particulate matter certain crystals immune complexes and activated thrombocytes Fundamental explorations into the mechanisms of NETosis observed that neutrophil enzyme activity PAD4 neutrophil elastase proteinase 3 and myeloperoxidase and signal transduction pathways contribute to the regulation of NETosis Histones in NET chromatin become modified by peptidylarginine deiminase 4 PAD4 and cleaved at specific sites by proteases leading to extensive chromatin externalization In addition NETs serve for attachment of bactericidal enzymes including myeloperoxidase leukocyte proteases and the cathelicidin LL 37 NETs are decorated with proteases and may thus contribute to tissue destruction However the attachment of these enzymes to NET associated supramolecular structures restricts systemic spread of the proteolytic activity While the benefit of NETs in an infection appears obvious NETs also participate as key protagonists in various pathologic states Therefore it is essential for NETs to be efficiently cleared otherwise digestive enzymes may gain access to tissues where inflammation takes place Persistent NET exposure at sites of inflammation may lead to a further complication NET antigens may provoke acquired immune responses and over time could initiate autoimmune reactions serve as antigen for nuclear autoantibodies and foster DNA immune complex related inflammation Neutrophil products and deiminated proteins comprise an important group of autoantigens in musculoskeletal disorders Aberrant NET synthesis and or clearance are often associated with inflammatory and autoimmune conditions Recent evidence also implicates aberrant NET formation in the development of endothelial damage atherosclerosis and thrombosis Intravital microscopy provides evidence for conditions that induce NETosis in vivo Furthermore NETs can easily be detected in synovial fluid and tissue sections of patients with arthritis and gout NETosis is thus of interest to researchers who investigate innate immune responses host pathogen interactions chronic inflammatory disorders cell and vascular biology biochemistry and autoimmunity As we enter the second decade of research on NETosis it is useful and timely to review the mechanisms and pathways of NET formation their role in bacterial and fungal defense and their importance as inducers of autoimmune responses

The Evangelicals Robert Krapohl, Charles H. Lippy, 1999-04-30 The different facets of American religious life are more thoroughly understood with an awareness of the Evangelical heritage that intersects the different denominational boundaries Since Evangelicalism is not confined to one religious denomination or group it has associations with a number of American religious movements such as Fundamentalism Pentecostalism the Charismatic Movement and Revivalism This study modeled after the popular Greenwood Denominations in America series analyzes the people institutions and the religious culture of modern American Evangelicals Divided into three sections the book presents a history of American Evangelicalism discusses themes and issues in modern American Evangelicalism and provides a biographical dictionary of modern American Evangelical leaders The combination of critical narrative and reference will appeal to religion scholars and American culture scholars alike Separate bibliographies unique to the history section and to the themes and issues section provide valuable resources for further research Equally helpful is the bibliographic material that completes each entry in the biographical dictionary section of the book The three part organization makes this an accessible research tool clearly organized for easy cross referencing
