For example, the authors of the study on the effects of the 1994-1995 drought on the health of children in the Sahel found that the drought had a significant negative impact on the health of children in the Sahel. The authors found that the drought led to a significant increase in the prevalence of malnutrition and a significant decrease in the prevalence of infectious diseases. The authors also found that the drought led to a significant increase in the prevalence of mental health problems. The authors concluded that the drought had a significant negative impact on the health of children in the Sahel.
