Research Impact and the Early Career Researcher Kieran Fenby-Hulse, Emma Heywood, Kate Walker, 2019-05-24 Research Impact and the Early Career Researcher documents experiences and perspectives on the emerging concept of research impact from a range of disciplines and places them within an analytical and critical discursive framework. Combining personal reflections with research essays, it provides the reader with a multi-dimensional perspective on research impact and how it connects to the research lives and practice of early career researchers. Research impact is playing an ever-increasing role in international research policy and government strategy. This book explores the arrival of impact into the national research consciousness. Discusses how to build capacity and skills within research impact and how this might impact academic career progression in an international job market. Offers advice on balancing national expectations with institutional expectations on research in terms of funding and career progression. Offers suggested ways forward whilst actively challenging what constitutes research impact. Research Impact and the Early Career Researcher provides a much needed research base for studies of research impact and the extent to which it has altered, changed and influenced the research practice of early career academics. It is an essential guide for any new and early career researchers wishing to navigate the complex landscape in order to meaningfully contribute to the impact agenda. Impact in Doctoral Education Emma Parry, Colin Pilbeam, 2024-04-09 Demonstrating how impact can be created and derived from doctoral programmes, this book focuses on their influence on academic knowledge, policy and practice. Significantly, it highlights the crucial impact of these programmes on the individual and the enduring consequences of this. Drawing on their extensive experience and conversations with stakeholders in doctoral education from around the world and incorporating real case examples, the authors provide practical guidance throughout the book which enables readers to enhance the design of new and existing doctoral programmes for greater impact. Each chapter ends with questions to stimulate reflection on the readers' experience of impact from doctoral education. The concluding chapter outlines a manifesto for enhancing and ensuring impact from doctoral research in the future. With insights into the impact of doctoral programmes on individual researchers.

this book will be essential reading for scholars of management education as well as being a valuable resource for Higher Education administrators and senior academics around the world tasked with increasing impact from their doctoral programmes

Handbook of Research on Connecting Research Methods for Information Science Research

Ngulube, Patrick, 2019-12-13 In today's globalized world viable and reliable research is fundamental for the development of information. Innovative methods of research have begun to shed light on notable issues and concerns that affect the advancement of knowledge within information science. Building on previous literature and exploring these new research techniques are necessary to understand the future of information and knowledge. The Handbook of Research on Connecting Research Methods for Information Science Research is a collection of innovative research on the methods and application of study methods within library and information science. While highlighting topics including data management, philosophical foundations and quantitative methodology, this book is ideally designed for librarians, information science professionals, policymakers, advanced level students, researchers and academicians seeking current research on transformative methods of research within information science.

Doctoral education in context Jan Botha, Liezel Frick, Nompilo Tshuma, 2025-09-29

Doctoral Education in Context: Perspectives from Africa shares lived experiences and insights of doctoral supervisors from 16 different countries in Africa. The book's originality lies also in the contributors' profiles as practicing novice doctoral supervisors. All of them graduated from the Training Course for Supervisors offered by the Centre for Research on Evaluation Science and Technology CREST at Stellenbosch University in South Africa with the support of the German Academic Exchange Service DAAD, German Rectors Conference HRK through the DIES Programme. The authors' commitment to doctoral supervision in their particular context is shown in each chapter. Many edited volumes bring together the voices of often established researchers; in this book we hear first hand the voices of novice supervisors who are willing to learn and share their insights and experiences in doctoral supervision. This perspective makes the unique strength and originality of the book. This book is for anyone involved in the research and practice of doctoral supervision in Africa and the global context. Readers and doctoral supervisors outside Africa will learn much about the challenging world of doctoral supervision in Africa.
