US Foreign Policy in the Middle East Yakub Halabi, 2016-02-11 US foreign policy in the Middle East has for the most part been shaped by the eruption of major crises that have revealed the deficiency in and bankruptcy of existing consensus and conceptions Crises generate a new set of ideas to address the roots of the crisis and construct a new reality that would best serve US interests Further crises stimulate new ideological and ideational debates that de legitimate existing practices and prevailing ideas Yakub Halabi analyzes the way ideas and conceptions have guided US foreign policy in the Middle East the erection of institutions through which these ideas were brought into practice and the manner in which these ideas became obsolete and were modified by new ideas The selection of crises examined is persuasive and provides a critical lens to observe important turning points in American foreign policy

The International Relations of the Contemporary Middle East Tareq Y. Ismael, Glenn E. Perry, 2013-10-01 The Middle East a few decades ago was seen to be an autonomous subsystem of the global international political system More recently the region has been subordinated to the hegemony of a singular superpower the US bolstered by an alliance with Israel and a network of Arab client states The subordination of the contemporary Middle East has resulted in large part from the disappearance of countervailing forces for example global bipolarity that for a while allowed the Arab world in particular to exercise a modicum of flexibility in shaping its international relations The aspirations of the indigenous population of the Middle East have been stifled by the dynamics of the unequal global power relationships and domestic politics of the countries of the region are regularly subordinated to the prerogatives of international markets and the strategic competition of the great powers Employing the concept of imperialism defined as a pattern of alliances between a center rulers in the Center developed country and a center client regime in the Periphery underdeveloped country as an overall framework to analyse the subordination of the region this book is essential reading for students and scholars of the Middle East International Relations and Politics in general

Constitutional Politics in the Middle East Said Amir Arjomand, 2008-01-17 This book is the first comparative and interdisciplinary study of constitutional politics and constitution making in the Middle East The historical background and setting are fully explored in two substantial essays by Linda Darling and Sa d Amir Arjomand placing the contemporary experience in the contexts respectively of the ancient Middle Eastern legal and political tradition and of the nineteenth and twentieth century legal codification and political modernization These are followed by Ann Mayer s general analysis of the treatment of human rights in relation to Islam in Middle Eastern constitutions and Nathan Brown s comparative scrutiny of the process of constitution making in Iran Afghanistan and Iraq with reference to the available constitutional theories which are shown to throw little or no light on it The remaining essays are country by country case studies of Turkey Afghanistan and Iraq the case of Iran having been covered by Arjomand as the special point of reference Mehmet Fevzi Bilgin examines the making and subsequent transformation of the Turkish Constitution of 1982 against current theories of constitutional and deliberative democracy while Hootan Shambayati examines the institutional mechanism for protecting the ideological foundations of the Turkish Republic most notably the Turkish Constitutional Court which offers a surprising parallel to the Iranian Council of Guardians Arjomand s introduction brings together the bumpy experience of the Middle East along the long road to political reconstruction through constitution making and constitutional reform drawing some general analytical lessons from it and showing the consequences of the origins of the constitutions of Turkey and Iran in revolutions and of Afghanistan and Iraq in war and foreign invasion
