The Participator in Contemporary Art Kaija Kaitavuori, 2018-08-30 The early 21st century has seen contemporary art make continued use of audience participation in which the spectator becomes part of the artwork itself In this book Kaija Kaitavuori claims that the participator is a new artistic role that does not fall under the auspices of artist or spectator and in proving such she devises a four group typology of involvement Her classification distinguishes between different forms of engagement and identifies their specific features The key criteria she proposes are how concepts of authorship and ownership shift in relation to collectively created work how contracts regulating the use and production of shared work are arranged and the extent to which involvement in making art can be regarded as democratic This highly original book thus offers students and teachers the tools with which to improve their understanding of participatory art and removes the confusing terminology that has characterized so many other discussions and flawless management can't compensate for a poorly conceived exhibition. The book underscores the necessity of integrating business acumen with artistic sensibility for impactful and financially sustainable art exhibitions. The book uniquely emphasizes data-driven decision making, providing professionals with tools to analyze market trends and evaluate exhibition performance. It progresses from core concepts in exhibition theory and practice to detailed explorations of planning, management, and promotion, incorporating case studies to illustrate key principles. Marketing, finance, and project management principles are applied to audience development, budget creation, and project timelines, enriching the analysis and providing a broader understanding of the exhibition planning process. Targeted towards art professionals, gallery owners, and students of arts management, this book provides practical guidance applicable to various exhibition types, focusing primarily on contemporary art. By addressing ongoing debates such as the role of technology and ethics in art, the book encourages critical examination and informed perspectives within the dynamic field of arts management.

Interpreting Art in Museums and Galleries Christopher Whitehead, 2011-12-02 In this pioneering book, Christopher Whitehead provides an overview and critique of art interpretation practices in museums and galleries. Covering the philosophy and sociology of art, traditions in art history, and art display, the book explores the psychology of the aesthetic experience and ideas about learning and communication. Whitehead advances major theoretical frameworks for understanding interpretation from curators' and visitors' perspectives. Although not a manual, the book is deeply practical. It presents extensively researched European and North American case studies involving interviews with professionals engaged in significant cutting-edge interpretation projects. Finally, it sets out the ethical and political responsibilities of institutions and professionals engaged in art interpretation. Exploring the theoretical and practical dimensions of art interpretation in accessible language, this book covers the construction of art by museums and galleries in the form of collections, displays, exhibition, and discourse. The historical and political dimensions of art interpretation, the functioning of narrative categories and chronologies in art displays, practices, discourses, and problems surrounding the interpretation of historical and contemporary art, visitor experiences, and questions of authorship and accessibility, the role of exhibition texts, new interpretive technologies, and live interpretation in art museum and gallery contexts are thoroughly researched with immediately practical applications. Interpreting Art in Museums and Galleries will inform the practices of art curators and those studying the subject.

The City on Display Joel Robinson, 2022-08-19 The City on Display: Architecture, Festivals, and the Urban Commons reflects on the biennials, triennials, and other festivals of architecture and design that have been held over the last two decades as they expand and transform in response to the exigencies of planetary urbanisation. Joel Robinson examines the development of these large-scale international and perennial exhibitions as they address such challenges as urban regeneration, heritage preservation, climate change, and the migration crisis. Homing in on examples of festivals in Venice, Rotterdam, Oslo, Tallinn, Sharjah, Seoul, Shenzhen, and Hong Kong, the author describes how they alter the public spaces that host them, either through civic boosterism and gentrification on the one hand or through a reassertion of the urban commons and the right to the city on the other hand He attempts to thematise the architecture festival's relationship with the city and interrogate its potential as a forum for global debate about the emergencies of the urban condition This book will be beneficial for students and academics of architecture and urbanism and especially those who have an interest in how the city gets exhibited at such festivals and even reimagined as something other than it currently is

Art Practice in a Digital Culture Hazel Gardiner, Charlie Gere, 2016-04-15 Much as art history is in the process of being transformed by new information communication technologies often in ways that are either disavowed or resisted art practice is also being changed by those same technologies One of the most obvious symptoms of this change is the increasing numbers of artists working in universities and having their work facilitated and supported by the funding and infrastructural resources that such institutions offer This new paradigm of art as research is likely to have a profound effect on how we understand the role of the artist and of art practice in society In this unique book artists art historians art theorists and curators of new media reflect on the idea of art as research and how it has changed practice Intrinsic to the volume is an investigation of the advances in creative practice made possible via artists engaging directly with technology or via collaborative partnerships between practitioners and technological experts ranging through a broad spectrum of advanced methods from robotics through rapid prototyping to the biological sciences
