

Chapter 2: Planning Your Wireless Network

Network Topology

A wireless LAN is a group of computers, each equipped with one Instant Wireless Series adapter. Computers in a wireless LAN must be configured to share the same radio channel.

The Instant Wireless Series adapters provide access to a wired LAN for wireless workstations. An integrated wireless and wired LAN is called an infrastructure configuration. A group of Instant Wireless Series adapter users and an Instant Wireless Wireless-G Access Point compose a Basic Service Set (BSS). Each Instant Wireless Series adapter PC in a BSS can talk to any computer in a wired LAN infrastructure via the Wireless-G Access Point.

An infrastructure configuration extends the accessibility of an Instant Wireless Series adapter PC to a wired LAN, and doubles the effective wireless transmission range for two Instant Wireless Series adapter PCs. Since the Wireless-G Access Point is able to forward data within its BSS, the effective transmission range in an infrastructure LAN is doubled.

Roaming

Infrastructure mode also supports roaming capabilities for mobile users. More than one BSS can be configured as an Extended Service Set (ESS). This continuous network allows users to roam freely within an ESS. All PCs equipped with an Instant Wireless Series adapter within one ESS must be configured with the same ESS ID and use the same radio channel.

Before enabling an ESS with roaming capability, choosing a feasible radio channel and optimum Wireless-G Access Point position is recommended. Proper Access Point positioning combined with a clear radio signal will greatly enhance performance.

Chapter 3: Getting to Know the Wireless-G Access Point

The Wireless-G Access Point's Back Panel

The Access Point's ports, where a network cable is connected, are located on the Access Point's back panel.

Reset Button

There are two ways to Reset the Access Point's factory defaults. Either press the Reset Button using a small, pointed object like a ball-point pen, for approximately ten seconds, or restore the defaults from the password tab in the Access Point's Web-Based Utility.

LAN

This LAN (Local Area Network) port connects to Ethernet network devices, such as a hub, switch, or router.

Power

The Power port is where you will connect the power adapter.

Important: Resetting the Access Point will erase all of your settings (WEP Encryption, Wireless and LAN settings, etc.) and replace them with the factory defaults. Do not reset the Access Point if you want to retain these settings.
