1. The first step in the process is to identify the problem. This is often done by the customer, who may report a problem or a complaint. The problem is then defined and the scope of the problem is determined.
2. The next step is to gather information. This is done by asking the customer for more details about the problem. The information gathered is then used to identify the cause of the problem.
3. The third step is to analyze the information. This is done by looking at the information gathered and identifying the cause of the problem. The cause is then identified and the solution is determined.
4. The fourth step is to implement the solution. This is done by putting the solution into practice. The solution is then implemented and the problem is solved.
