Global Visions, Local Landscapes Lisa L. Gezon, 2006-09-15 In her new book Gezon argues that local events continuously redefine and challenge global processes of land use and land degradation She challenges analytical distinctions between separate local and global spaces rather proposing that the global is one aspect of the local to the extent that people in any given locale must act within the parameters of policies authorities and material conditions that have sources outside of the reach of immediate local networks Her ethnographic study of Antankarana identifying rice farmers and cattle herders in northern Madagascar weaves together an analysis of remotely sensed images of land cover over time with ethnographies of situated negotiations between human actors She focuses in particular on the interplay of political authorities including family based elders a regional indigenous authority and an NGO charged with enforcement of conservation policies in the context of specific contests over resource access Gezon takes a micro political approach in evaluating conflicts that result in a change in control over local resources by global or supra national policies capital or personnel Her book will be particularly valuable to researchers and students in anthropology geography sociology and environmental studies and those involved in conservation and resource management

Nature and Culture Sarah Pilgrim, Jules N. Pretty, 2010-09-23 There is a growing recognition that the diversity of life comprises both biological and cultural diversity But this division is not universal and in many cases has been deepened by the common disciplinary divide between the natural and social sciences and our apparent need to manage and control nature This book goes beyond divisive definitions and investigates the bridges linking biological and cultural diversity The international team of authors explore the common drivers of loss and argue that policy responses should target both forms of diversity in a novel integrative approach to conservation thus reducing the gap between science policy and practice While conserving nature alongside human cultures presents unique challenges this book forcefully shows that any hope for saving biological diversity is predicated on a concomitant effort to appreciate and protect cultural diversity A Handbook of Practicing Anthropology Riall W. The Complex Forest

Carol J.P. Colfer,2010-09-30 The Complex Forest systematically examines the theory processes and early outcomes of a research and management approach called adaptive collaborative management ACM An alternative to positivist approaches to development and conservation that assume predictability in forest management ACM acknowledges the complexity and unpredictability inherent in any forest community and the importance of developing solutions together with the forest peoples whose lives will be most affected by the outcomes Building on earlier work that established the importance of flexible collaborative approaches to sustainable forest management The Complex Forest describes the work of ACM practitioners facing a broad range of challenges in diverse settings and attempts to identify the conditions under which ACM is most effective Case studies of ACM in 33 forest sites in 11 countries together with Colfer s systematic comparison of results at each site indicate that human and institutional capabilities have been strengthened In Zimbabwe for example the number of women involved in decisionmaking soared In Nepal community members detected and sanctioned dishonest community elites In Cameroon and Bolivia learning programs resulted in better conflict management These are early results but a wide range of recent research supports Colfer s belief that these new capabilities will eventually contribute to higher incomes and to sustainable improvements in the health of forests and forest peoples The Complex Forest reinforces calls for change in the way we plan conservation and development programs away from command and control approaches toward ones that require bureaucratic flexibility and responsiveness as well as greater local participation in setting priorities and problem solving
