Preface

The glory and the loss of Greek philosophy is its lack of a past. Drawing on nothing more than common speech and the classic potential of the Greek language the Hellenic philosophers not only formulated a problematic within which all subsequent thinkers cast their own reflections, but devised as well a sophisticated and complex terminology as a vehicle for their thoughts. Both the terms and the concepts they employed have since been overgrown with a millennium and a half of connotation that not even the most determined can completely strip away. The contemporary philosopher or theologian may attempt to rethink the concept, but he is betrayed in the utterance. For what the thinker has striven to clear away the reader or listener supplies anew. "Soul" and "God" carry their history heavily with them.

By a not too peculiar irony we read their philosophical future back into our Greek past in a variety of ways. One has experienced a Whiteheadian and Nietzschean Plato, a Thomistic and Hegelian Aristotle, and even an Existential Diogenes. As in much else, the Greeks invented this particular historical fallacy. It is clear that the Stoics read themselves back into Heraclitus; and the Neoplatonists, Plotinus into Plato.

It is an obvious necessity to make some sort of attempt at coming to the Greeks on their own terms. This can, I think, best be accomplished not by the usual chronological and historical approach, but, for all its divisions into "schools" and "successions," obscure rather than illuminate the evolutions we might otherwise discuss in ancient philosophy, but rather from the direction of the problematic as revealed by a conservative treatment of some of the basic concepts. This can be done
