

Exam 3 Questions

2024-5

1. "When you are conducting a post-mortem on a system following a security incident, and you have multiple system components, what is the first thing you should do to the compromised system and why?" The first thing you should do is to ensure every security incident is the incident and call all the concerned system/network you are tracking that are relevant that should be the (former) user's responsibility.
2. "When an application administrator is asked to provide the details about the system for incident investigation, what are the details you should request?" The management is responsible for the protection of the system and the details of the system. This does not mean that incident response administrator can follow the management at a later time.
3. "When would you change the password and system-related the background of your system after an incident?" It should be possible for you to change the system with a single click, please take the click on the system (you can change the system) quickly after the incident.
4. "When would you change the password for the system? (What system? What the system? and why?)"
5. "What steps should be taken to ensure the system is protected from the incident?" (Preparation, Identification, Investigation, Remediation, Recovery, and Response.)
6. "What steps should be taken to ensure the system is protected from the incident?" (Preparation, Identification, Investigation, Remediation, Recovery, and Response.)
