This was it the day we reached eight billion people on the planet There was no celebration There was no change in our habits There was no avoiding the inevitable For the milestone that we reached was the breaking point that would damn us all The 50 50 Outbreak took effect and wiped out half of the world's population in the blink of an eye This was Mother Nature's plan and it had succeeded Whatever happened next no one planned for that As the remaining population endured new hardships of the post apocalyptic world a new threat arose that would test us all like never before Extinction Achievement Relocked Geoffrey Engelstein, 2020-02-18

How game designers can use the psychological phenomenon of loss aversion to shape player experience Getting something makes you feel good and losing something makes you feel bad But losing something makes you feel worse than getting the same thing makes you feel good So finding 10 is a thrill losing 10 is a tragedy On an intensity of feeling scale loss is more intense than gain This is the core psychological concept of loss aversion and in this book game creator Geoffrey Engelstein explains with examples from both tabletop and video games how it can be a tool in game design Loss aversion is a profound aspect of human psychology and directly relevant to game design it is a tool the game designer can use to elicit particular emotions in players Engelstein connects the psychology of loss aversion to a range of phenomena related to games exploring for example the endowment effect why when an object is ours it gains value over an equivalent object that is not ours as seen in the Weighted Companion Cube in the game Portal the framing of gains and losses to manipulate player emotions Deal or No Deal's use of the utility theory and regret and competence as motivations seen in the context of legacy games Finally Engelstein examines the approach to loss aversion in three games by Uwe Rosenberg charting the designer's increasing mastery Eating Fandom CarrieLynn D.
