Immunotherapy with Intravenous Immunoglobulins Paul Imbach,2012-12-02 The use of intravenous human antibodies in the treatment of primary immunodeficiencies is well recognized However it is now evident that they also have therapeutic potential for a wide range of other clinical disorders This book describes the use of human antibodies in the management of secondary virus induced immunodeficiencies neonatal and perinatal infections and autoimmunity Insight into their mechanism of action is also provided Immunoglobulin Therapy in the 21st Century: The Dark Side of the Moon Isabella Quinti,Marcella Visentini,Albert Farrugia,2015-11-20 In the early decades since the introduction in the early 80s of immunoglobulin therapy many studies tried to identify which clinical indications might benefit from the therapy which treatment s schedules are effective and safe It is universally accepted that immunoglobulin therapy is a life saving treatment in patients with PID The rise of new indications for further different clinical conditions resulted in a steady increase in demand for immunoglobulins Currently the consumption of immunoglobulin for PID represents a small fraction of the market In the recent past we have been observing 1 An increase in the demand for plasma and in the consequent need to increase the number of donors 2 Changes in methods to improve IgG recovery and to increase productivity as a response to growing clinical demand 3 Introduction of immunoglobulin treatments with higher concentration 4 Changes in the timing of administration with an increase in the rate of infusion 5 Introduction of immunoglobulin treatment administered subcutaneously mainly confined initially to patients with PID and later extended to other clinical indications which often require higher volumes of infusion Doctors following patients with PID were initially alarmed only to a possible risk of shortage More relevant and less discussed appear the possible consequences of 1 the risk of an improper transfer of information on treatments from a clinical indication to another In particular the idea of a mere replacement function in patients with PID might possibly be borrowed from the model of other clinical conditions requiring a replacement such as haemophilia In PID immunoglobulin treatment instead is obviously replacing a missing feature However other immune alterations are responsible for the large number of PID associated diseases including inflammatory manifestations and tumors common causes of morbidity and mortality The immunomodulatory effects of immunoglobulin administered at replacement dosages on multiple cells and immune system functions are still largely to be checked in in vitro studies and in vivo 2 the changes in the immunoglobulin production and schedules of administration These should have been assessed in studies of drug surveillance necessary in order to evaluate on large numbers of what it is initially reported on patients enrolled in the pivotal clinical trials usually in the absence of most of the main disease associated clinical conditions affecting pharmacokinetics efficacy and tolerability Severe side effects are now more frequently reported This requires surveillance studies in order to verify the tolerability Nowadays personalized health research presents methodologic challenges since emphasis is placed on the individual response rather than on the population Even within a universally accepted indication such as in PID the identification of prognostic markers should guide the therapeutic intervention 3 the risk of a decrease in the surveillance and monitoring of PID associated clinical conditions In fact self administration of immunoglobulins administered subcutaneously increased the independence of a number of patients On the other hand it led to the reduction in the number of contacts between specialized centers and patients who often require a close monitoring of disease associated conditions A wide debate between experts is necessary to afford the new challenge on immunoglobulin usage

Calculation Skills for Nurses Claire Boyd, 2013-05-06 Providing nursing students with words of wisdom and advice from real life student nurses Calculation Skills for Nurses enables you to calculate drug dosages with ease boosting your confidence and competence in this core area of nursing practice The book takes away the fear of calculations making it approachable easy and fun and ties in with the NMC standards for pre registration education and the Essential Skills Clusters It is filled with examples and questions based on real life nursing and healthcare situations and includes key information displayed on the inside back cover for quick look up on clinical placements

Autoantibodies Rikard Holmdahl, Falk Nimmerjahn, Ralf J. Ludwig, 2019-06-21 Medicare Reimbursements of Physician-administered Drugs United States. Congress. House. Committee on Ways and Means. Subcommittee on Health, 2006 IgG4 Autoantibodies in the Context of IgG4 Autoimmunity Inga Koneczny, Vuslat Yilmaz, Maartje G. Huijbers, Erdem Tüzün, Luis Querol, Pilar Martinez, 2024-10-29 Many autoimmune diseases are induced by pathogenic autoantibodies that bind to self antigen expressed in cells and tissues and induce disease by the recruitment of immune cells activation of the classical complement pathway or induction of antigen cross linking and endocytosis These pathogenic mechanisms are however not available to antibodies of the IgG4 subclass as these differ structurally from the other IgG subclasses leaving them immunologically inert In general it is thought that IgG4 is part of an anti inflammatory immune response to an overreactive pro inflammatory response e g in the context of helminth infection and allergy
