Game-Based Learning and the Power of Play

Pauline Rooney,Nicola Whitton,2016-08-17 In recent years there has been growing interest in the use of games to enhance learning across multiple educational levels and extensive research has shown that games have considerable potential for enhancing learning motivation and skills development However despite a growing acknowledgement of this potential challenges remain and the use of games in formal education contexts remains far from mainstream While some studies identify design and development issues as a key barrier including associated costs others highlight organisational and infrastructural difficulties involved in implementing games in the classroom More recently increasing recognition of these difficulties has led many to explore how gaming elements rather than fully fledged games can be used to engage and enhance student learning a practice now widely referred to as gamification This edited collection of chapters explores the application potential and challenges of game based learning and gamification across multiple disciplines and sectors including psychology education business history languages and the creative arts With contributions exploring the use of games across the full educational spectrum from early childhood education through to the corporate sector it provides comprehensive insights into the potential of games and play for facilitating learning and engagement at every life stage

Education for All Richard Pring, Geoffrey Hayward, Ann Hodgson, Jill Johnson, Ewart Keep, Alis Oancea, Gareth Rees, Ken Spours, Stephanie Wilde, 2012-08-21 There are two key questions at the heart of the ongoing debate about education and training for all young people irrespective of background ability or attainment What counts as an educated 19 year old today Are the models of education we have inherited from the past sufficient to meet the needs of all young people as well as the social and economic needs of the wider community Education for All addresses these questions in the light of evidence collected over five years by the Nuffield Review of 14 19 Education and Training the most rigorous investigation of every aspect of this key educational phase for decades Written by the co directors of the Nuffield Review Education for All provides a critical comprehensive and thoroughly readable overview of 14 19 education and training and makes suggestions for the kind of education and training that should be provided over the coming decade and beyond The authors acknowledge that much has been achieved by the respective governments massive investment in resources closer collaboration between schools colleges training providers voluntary agencies and employers recognition and promotion of a wider range of qualifications They are also optimistic about the good things that are going on in many secondary classrooms enormous amounts of creativity courageous efforts to meet problems a deep concern and caring for many young people otherwise deprived of hope and opportunity But they argue for a radical reshaping of the future in the light of a broader vision of education a greater respect for more practical and active learning a system of assessment which supports rather than impoverishes learning respect for the professional expertise of the teacher a more unified system of qualifications ensuring progression into higher education and employment the creation of strongly collaborative and local learning systems and a more reflective and participative approach to policy Education for All should be read by everyone working in or with an interest in secondary level education in England and Wales and beyond *PIRLS - TIMS 2011.
