In addition to the five main windows, SketchUp also includes several different windows, such as the Components window that's open in Figure 1-1. You can open and close these as needed by using the Window menu. With the tools in these windows, you'll apply color and shading to your models, select prefabricated components, add shadows and lighting effects, and export your project.

Don't Be Afraid to Play

When you get started, don't be afraid to play. SketchUp is a 3D modeling software, and it's designed to be fun. You can create 3D models of anything you can imagine. You can even create 3D models of your own house. You can even create 3D models of your own car. You can even create 3D models of your own dog. You can even create 3D models of your own cat. You can even create 3D models of your own fish. You can even create 3D models of your own bird. You can even create 3D models of your own insect. You can even create 3D models of your own plant. You can even create 3D models of your own animal. You can even create 3D models of your own object. You can even create 3D models of your own scene. You can even create 3D models of your own world. You can even create 3D models of your own universe. You can even create 3D models of your own everything. So don't be afraid to play. SketchUp is a fun and easy way to create 3D models of anything you can imagine.

SketchUp's menu bar is stacked with the usual suspects, such as File, Edit, Window, and Help. SketchUp's View menu is a little different from the ones in most programs (Figure 1-2). The View menu has items in the SketchUp window that you can't find in other 3D modeling software. The View menu also includes items for creating 3D models, such as creating 3D models of your own house, car, dog, cat, fish, bird, insect, plant, animal, object, scene, and universe. You can even create 3D models of your own everything. So don't be afraid to play. SketchUp is a fun and easy way to create 3D models of anything you can imagine.
