

The background of the entire image is a photograph of a sunset over a beach. The sun is low on the horizon, creating a bright, golden glow that reflects on the wet sand and the surface of the ocean. The sky is a mix of orange, yellow, and light blue. The title 'Inner Light' is centered in the upper half of the image, enclosed in a black rectangular box with a thin white border. The text is in a white, elegant script font.

The Architect , 1925 Systemic Layal Liverpool, 2024-06-18 In the spirit of Medical Apartheid and Killing the Black Body A science based data driven and global exploration of racial disparities in health care access by virologist immunologist and science journalist Layal Liverpool Layal Liverpool spent years as a teen bouncing from doctor to doctor each one failing to diagnose her dermatological complaint Just when she'd grown used to the idea that she had an extremely rare and untreatable skin condition one dermatologist after a quick exam told her that she had a classic and common case of eczema and explained that it often appears differently on darker skin Her experience stuck with her making her wonder whether other medical conditions might be going undiagnosed in darker skinned people and whether racism could in fact make people sick The pandemic taught us that diseases like Covid disproportionately affect people of color Here Liverpool goes a step further to show that this disparity exists for all types of illness and that it is caused by racism In Systemic Liverpool shares her journey to show how racism woven into our societies as well as into the structures of medicine and science is harmful to our health Refuting the false belief that there are biological differences between races Liverpool goes on to show that racism related stress and trauma can however lead to biological changes that make people of color more vulnerable to illness debunking the myth of illness as the great equalizer From the problem of racial bias in medicine where the default human subject is white to the dangerous health consequences of systemic racism from the physical and psychological effects of daily microaggressions to intergenerational trauma and data gaps Liverpool reveals the fatal stereotypes that keep people of color undiagnosed untreated and unsafe and tells us what we can do about it

Mistrust Matthew Carey, 2017-10-15 Trust occupies a unique place in contemporary discourse Seen as both necessary and virtuous it is variously depicted as enhancing the social fabric lowering crime rates increasing happiness and generating prosperity It allows for complex political systems permits human communication underpins financial instruments and economic institutions and generally holds society together Against these overwhelmingly laudable qualities mistrust often goes unnoticed as a positive social phenomenon treated as little more than a corrosive absence a mere negative of trust itself With this book Matthew Carey proposes an ethnographic and conceptual exploration of mistrust that raises it up as legitimate stance in its own right While mistrust can quickly ruin relationships and even dissolve extensive social ties Carey shows that it might have other values Drawing on fieldwork in Morocco's High Atlas Mountains as well as comparative material from regions stretching from Eastern Europe to Melanesia he examines the impact of mistrust on practices of conversation and communication friendship and society and politics and cooperation In doing so he demonstrates that trust is not the only basis for organizing human society and cooperating with others The result is a provocative but enlightening work that makes us rethink social issues such as suspicion doubt and uncertainty
