Made Do Or Did Without How Daytonians Coped With The Great Depression:

Made Do Or Did Without Curt Dalton,2015-03-21 The 1920 s was a time of prosperity for the nation Businesses were doing well and people decided they wanted in on the action Soon people from all walks of life were buying stocks Profits could so easily be made this way that some people began borrowing from banks and plowing the money back into the stock market Shareholders called it the Big Bull Market with the price of stock rising and everyone seemingly getting rich at least on paper Unfortunately in some instances stock shares rose to a price that was much greater than companies were worth On October 24 1929 the stock market plummeted Five days later on Tuesday October 29 the stock market crashed as prices again fell Known as Black Tuesday billions of dollars worth of stock were wiped out as investors panicked and began selling their shares at lower and lower prices hoping to get back at least part of their money before prices dropped even further But there was little buying that day Some stocks ended up being worth 2 cents on the dollar before the nightmarish day ended Confidence in the U S economy crashed along with the stock market Investors no longer wanted to risk their money People stopped buying anything that wasn't really needed This led to factories shutting down as many already had merchandise they couldn't sell This in turn caused businesses to fail By the end of 1930 it was estimated that 7 million people had lost their jobs It was just the beginning of a depressed economy that would last over a decade This is the story of how Daytonians endured this period of hardship battling to find jobs and feed their families working together to survive and how they dealt with trying to escape if even for a little while the grinding world weariness of harsh conditions that seemed to have no ending in sight

Lost Dayton, Ohio Andrew Walsh,2018-06-11 Many of the places that helped make Dayton a center of innovation were lost to history while others survived and adapted representing the city's spirit of revitalization Some of the city's distinctive and significant structures such as Steele High School and the Callahan Building were demolished while others including the Arcade and Centre City Building saw hard times but now await redevelopment Entire neighborhoods such as the Haymarket and commercial districts such as West Fifth Street vanished and show no traces of their past Others including the popular Oregon District narrowly escaped the wrecking ball From the Wright Brothers Factory to the park that hosted the first NFL game Andrew Walsh explores the diverse selection of retail industrial entertainment and residential sites from Dayton's disappearing legacy

Painting the Milkweeds: How One American Family Coped with the Great Depression Richard D. Courtney,2008-11-28 In this sweet and humorous memoir Richard D Courtney tells the story of how his family the Courtneys of Altoona Pennsylvania survived the Great Depression by relying on their strong faith sense of optimism and old fashioned ingenuity His essays vividly recall school church and neighborhood life in the 1930s Surviving the Great Depression Joaquin Bowman,T. J. Hickey,2014-08-05 The Great Depression characterized by bread lines general unemployment bank and business failures hit swiftly and unexpectedly It challenged the inner and outer resources of the millions of bewildered people coping with their responsibilities And the Depression persisted starting with the stock market crash in October 1929 through various phases until the U S entered into World War II in December 1941 and unemployment dropped below ten per cent Prior to the financial collapse in 2008 most Americans had no idea what it was like to do without Since WW II the economy has been for the most part on the upswing As mortgages collapsed however and unemployment soared Americans got a taste just a taste of the fear and hopelessness that gripped the nation during the Great Depression This story is a record of how two people Bill and Annie Hickey with their three children grew into and weathered through the long hard period of that Great Depression We Made Do: Recalling the Great Depression , Provides information about a project of the students
