Identify the theme

Once upon a time, there was a classroom full of students with very special talents. Mary could write beautifully, Sam could read at super speed, and Anna could figure out any math problems. There was one student in the room who thought they had no special talents. Her name was Grace. She watched all the other students excel in class using their special talents, but she felt like she could never keep up.

One day, her teacher noticed that Grace looked upset. She asked her what was wrong. Grace told her that she felt like she had no special talents and said she thought she would never be as successful as her classmates. Her teacher was shocked!

"What do you mean you have no special talents! You are the most amazing artist I've ever seen! Everyone is meant to have their own talents. That is what makes us all so special. If everyone was the same the world would be a very boring place. You should be proud of how amazing and unique you are rather than comparing your talents to others. Everyones talent is important," said the teacher. After talking with her teacher Grace realized that just because her special talent was different it does not mean that she is not special and she realized the important role she plays in the classroom.
