Motivational Dynamics in Language Learning Zoltán Dörnyei, Peter D. MacIntyre, Alastair Henry, 2014-10-14 This landmark volume offers a collection of conceptual papers and empirical research studies that investigate the dynamics of language learning motivation from a complex dynamic systems perspective The contributors include some of the most well established scholars from three continents all addressing the question of how we can understand motivation if we perceive it as continuously changing and evolving rather than as a fixed learner trait The data based studies also provide useful research models and templates for graduate students and scholars in the fields of applied linguistics and SLA who are interested in engaging with the intriguing area of examining language learning in a dynamic vein

Motivation and Foreign Language Learning David Lasagabaster, Aintzane Doiz, Juan Manuel Sierra, 2014-07-31 Motivation is a key aspect of second language learning There is no doubt that abstract models are basic to gain theoretical insights into motivation however teachers and researchers demand comprehensible explanations for motivation that can help them to improve their everyday teaching and research The aim of this book is to provide both theoretical insights and practical suggestions to improve motivation in the classroom With this in mind the book is divided into two sections the first part includes innovative ideas regarding language learning motivation whereas the second is focused on the relationship between different approaches to foreign language learning such as EFL English as a foreign language CLIL Content and Language Integrated Learning or immersion and motivation Both sections have an emphasis on pedagogical implications that are rooted in both theoretical and empirical work      New Directions in Language Learning Psychology Christina Gkonou, Dietmar Tatzl, Sarah Mercer, 2015-11-27 This book explores potential new directions in the growing field of language learning psychology The individual chapters cover theoretical and conceptual developments and innovative methodological designs while also exploring practical implications Language learning psychology is a vibrant field of research that typically involves constructs from social and educational psychology which it considers in terms of their relevance for the domain of language learning The diverse theoretical and empirical chapters examine a range of familiar and lesser known constructs highlighting the importance of taking into account both learner and teacher psychologies and recognising the complexity dynamism and situatedness of psychological constructs as well as the value of employing diverse research methodologies It is hoped that these new directions concerning populations constructs and theoretical and methodological frameworks will pave the way for innovative future developments in this vibrant field      Complexity in Classroom Foreign Language Learning Motivation Richard J. Sampson, 2016-06-02 This book explores how complex systems theory can contribute to the understanding of classroom language learner motivation through an extended examination of one particular situated research project Working from the lived experience of the participants the study describes how action research methods were used to explore the dynamic conditions operating in a foreign language classroom in Japan The book draws attention to the highly personalised and individual yet equally co formed nature of classroom foreign language learning motivation and to the importance of agency and emotions in language learning It presents an extended illustration of the applicability of complex systems theory for research design and process in SLA and its narrative approach shines light upon the evolving nature of research and role of the researcher The study will be a valuable resource for practitioners researchers and postgraduate students interested in classroom language teaching and learning especially those with a focus on motivation among learners      The Routledge Handbook of Second Language Acquisition Susan M. Gass, Alison Mackey, 2013-06-17 This handbook brings together 50 leading international figures in the field to produce a state of the art overview of second language acquisition      The Strategy Factor in Successful Language Learning Carol Griffiths, 2018-03-28 This book addresses fundamental questions regarding the relationships between successful language learning and strategy use and development according to learner situational or target variables It considers strategy effectiveness from an individual point of view and discusses pedagogical issues especially relating to teacher perceptions and training classroom and learner factors methodology and content This new edition has been reworked and revised to include an extensive review analysis and re interpretation of the existing literature and an update on the theoretical debate surrounding language learning strategies The research methodology section has been considerably extended and detailed explanations are now given for how to analyse data from research studies Rather than focusing on strategies divorced from the real world of the classroom this book explores the issues from the teaching learning point of view and will be of interest to students teachers trainee teachers teacher educators and researchers alike      Minority Populations in Canadian Second Language Education Katy Arnett, Callie Mady, 2013-08-21 Until now the picture painted of French second language learning in Canada has tended to focus on successful French immersion This volume offers a broader representation in response to the demographic changes that have made the French language classroom a more complex place Focusing on inclusion and language maintenance the chapters discuss how a multilingual population can add the two official languages to their repertoire whilst maintaining their languages of origin heritage how the revitalization of Indigenous languages can best be supported in the language classroom and how students with disabilities can be helped to successfully learn languages      Twelve Lectures on Multilingualism David Singleton, Larissa Aronin, 2018-11-20 This major new textbook offers an accessible introduction to many of the most interesting areas in the study of multilingualism It consists of twelve lectures written by leading researchers each dedicated to a particular topic of importance Each lecture offers a state of the art authoritative review of a subdiscipline of the field The volume sheds light on the ways in which the use and acquisition of languages are changing providing new insights into the nature of contemporary multilingualism It will be of interest both to undergraduate and postgraduate students working in linguistics related disciplines and students in associated social sciences      Language Learning Motivation in Japan Matthew T. Apple, Dexter Da Silva, Terry Fellner, 2013-10-01 This book synthesises current theory and research on L2 motivation in the EFL Japanese context carried out by internationally recognized researchers and upcoming researcher educators working in various educational contexts in Japan Topics covered include the issues of cultural identity demotivation language communities positive psychology possible L2 selves and internationalisation within a key EFL context The studies in the book utilise a wide variety of research methodologies aiming to narrow the gap between theory and practice and examine L2 motivation in primary secondary and tertiary education This volume will be of interest to research teacher professionals who are currently engaged in active ESL EFL practice EFL educators researchers and teacher trainers both inside and outside Japan who are interested in research on L2 motivation in general and within the Japanese context in particular as well as graduate and postgraduate researchers      Language Intake Carol Griffiths, 2024-11-05 Aimed towards advanced students and researchers in language acquisition and teaching Language Intake Understanding and Improving Language Learning and Teaching considers the long debated definition of language intake and its determining factors In doing so it presents a unique argument for language input and intake with a particular focus on how input interaction identity and investment contribute to intake through complex intercommunication The book defines each of the contributing factors of intake in turn and demonstrates the principles of language intake through interviews with successful language learners in order to encourage teachers to take these factors into consideration so as to maximise intake of the target language The author proposes that all these multiple factors contribute to what might be called the Intake Hypothesis which can be outlined as a practicable framework to support teachers in providing rich interesting and extensive input affording opportunities for interaction respecting learner identity and offering a motivating environment to encourage and sustain investment of time and effort thereby contributing to intake

Individual Differences in Language Learning Carol Griffiths, Adem Soruç, 2020-12-01 This textbook takes a Complex Systems Theory approach to examine individual differences between learners and the potential impact of these variables on the process of acquiring a second language The authors argue that individual variables cannot provide the complete picture and that they must instead be understood as part of an interconnected and dynamic system of different factors in order to be useful in a language learning context Written in an accessible style and suitable for final year undergraduate and Masters level students the book includes clear definitions of key terms discussion questions for classroom use practical exercises and activities and examples of real empirical studies that students and teachers can replicate in their own contexts This textbook will be of interest to students taking TESOL and SLA courses and modules as well as those on broader Applied Linguistics programmes

Second Language Literacy Practices and Language Learning Outside the Classroom Miho Inaba, 2018-11-21 This book presents a comprehensive and detailed study of literacy practices and language use outside of the classroom by university students of Japanese It investigates both tasks related to classes e g homework and preparation for classes and voluntary activities in the target language e g watching TV and writing emails and discusses how values motivations and types of activities differ between the two contexts It employs sociocultural perspectives to observe reading and writing activities within and under the influence of individual and social contexts such as learner motives peer networks and the language classroom and contributes to the related research areas in the field of second language acquisition such as motivation autonomous language learning and language learning strategies Crucially the book not only documents out of class literacy activities but also examines which teaching practices facilitate and promote such out of class language learning and use It considers which literacy activities in the target language students undertake out of class which factors encourage or discourage such out of class activity and how and with which tools they undertake these activities As such the book provides guidance for classroom teaching and suggests that slight changes to teaching practices in the classroom may enhance autonomous learning outside the classroom

Emotion in Multilingual Interaction Matthew T. Prior, Gabriele Kasper, 2016-10-03 This volume brings together for the first time a collection of studies that investigates how multilingual speakers construct emotions in their talk as a joint discursive practice The contributions draw on the well established converging traditions of conversation analysis discursive psychology and membership categorization analysis together with recent work on interactional storytelling stylization and multimodal analysis By adopting a discursive approach to emotion in multilingual talk the volume breaks with the dominant view of emotions as cognitive and intra psychological phenomena and their study through self report Through detailed analyses of original recorded data the chapters examine how participants produce emotion implicative actions identities stances and morality through their interactional work in ordinary face to face conversation computer mediated interaction institutional talk in medical educational and broadcast media settings and in research interviews The volume addresses itself to students and researchers interested in language and emotion multilingual speakers and settings pragmatics and discourse analysis
