Pivotal Strategies Lynn C. Lewis, 2024-07-15 Pivotal Strategies examines the rhetorical contexts and motivations that determine how and why people choose writing studies as a discipline especially as the field begins to take more seriously an antiracist imperative that requires more conscious listening and promotion of work from scholars representing traditionally underrepresented voices Because undergraduate degrees in writing studies are relatively new claiming the discipline has required reinvention and revision at personal and professional levels far different than any other discipline Suspicions about the viability of the discipline linger in many departments and universities as well as outside the academy leading writing studies scholars to develop innovative strategies to deal with covertly hostile attitudes Within the collection contributors name explicit claiming strategies from the discipline's beginnings to the contemporary moment locating opportune spaces negotiating identities and fostering resilience and developing allegiances by foregrounding their embodiment as underrepresented members of academia through a commitment to social justice and equity Responding to current conversations on the worth of education with honest stories about the burdens and joys of becoming and being an academic Pivotal Strategies features a spectrum of voices across racial gender class and age categories This collection not only makes the discipline more visible but also helps map the contemporary state of writing studies

Keywords in Composition Studies Paul Heilker, Peter Vandenberg, 1996 Keywords in Composition Studies is the first systematic inquiry into the vocabulary of writing teachers and theorists In brief yet heavily researched essays contributors explore the development of and interconnections among fifty five of the most consequential words in the field It is with these critical terms that the contemporary field of composition has been composed and in this sense Keywords in Composition Studies is an introduction to the principal ideas and ideals of compositionists Yet this book is neither a dictionary nor an encyclopedia it does not attempt to capture the established knowledge of a unified discipline through its vocabulary but rather explores the multiple layers of meaning inhabiting the words writing teachers and theorists have depended and continue to depend on most Each essay begins with the assumption that its central term is important precisely because its meaning is open overdetermined The purpose of each essay is to foreground a range of meaning signified by its central term rather than to pinpoint a meaning In this sense Keywords in Composition Studies is a practical model for reading the texts of an expanding and unsettled field

Reprogrammable Rhetoric Michael J. Faris, Steve Holmes, 2022-09-01 Reprogrammable Rhetoric offers new inroads for rhetoric and composition scholars past and present engagements with critical making Moving beyond arguments of inclusion and justifications for scholarly legitimacy and past historicizations of the material turn in the field this volume explores what these practices look like with both a theoretical and hands on how to approach Chapters function not only as critical illustrations or arguments for the use of reprogrammable circuits but also as pedagogical instructions that enable readers to easily use or modify these compositions for their own ends This collection offers nuanced theoretical perspectives on material and cultural rhetorics alongside practical tutorials for students researchers and teachers to explore critical making across traditional areas such as wearable sensors Arduinos Twitter bots multimodal pedagogy Raspberry Pis and paper circuitry as well as underexplored areas like play gaming text mining bots and electronic monuments Designed to be taught in upper division undergraduate and graduate classrooms these tutorials will benefit non expert and expert critical makers alike All contributed codes and scripts are also available on Utah State University Press's companion website to encourage downloading cloning and repurposing Contributors Aaron Beveridge Kendall Gerdes Kellie Gray Matthew Halm Steven Hammer Cana Uluak Itchuaqiyah John Jones M Bawar Khan Bree McGregor Sean Morey Ryan Omizo Andrew Pilsch David Rieder David Sheridan Wendi Sierra Nicholas Van Horn Networked Process Helen Foster, 2007-08-01 Helen Foster problematizes one of the dominant metaphors in rhetoric and composition the notion of writing process and in turn offers an important and engaging new approach for the future of the discipline one that directly addresses the complexities challenges and opportunities for writing research in a postmodern world Post-process Theory Thomas Kent, 1999 Breaking with the still dominant process tradition in composition studies post process theory or at least the different incarnations of post process theory discussed by the contributors represented in this collection of original essays endorses the fundamental idea that no codifiable or generalizable writing process exists or could exist Post process theorists hold that the practice of writing cannot be captured by a generalized process or a big theory Most post process theorists hold three assumptions about the act of writing writing is public writing is interpretive and writing is situated The first assumption is the commonsensical claim that writing constitutes a public interchange By interpretive act post process theorists generally mean something as broad as making sense of and not exclusively the ability to move from one code to another To interpret means more than merely to paraphrase it means to enter into a relationship of understanding with other language users And finally because writing is a public act that requires interpretive interaction with others writers always write from some position or some place Writers are never nowhere they are situated Leading theorists and widely published scholars in the field contributors are Nancy Blyler John Clifford Barbara Couture Nancy C DeJoy Sidney I Dobrin Elizabeth Ervin Helen Ewald David Foster Debra Journet Thomas Kent Gary A Olson Joseph Petraglia George Pullman David Russell and John Schilb Theorizing Composition Mary Kennedy, 1998-06-25 The last 25 years have witnessed extraordinary growth in the academic specialization variously described as composition studies or rhetoric and composition What was noticeable about the field in its infancy was a preoccupation with practice a lack of emphasis on theory and an exclusive reliance on the writing process As its disciplinary status has grown the field has become far more theoretical Composition studies has expanded its focus reconceptualized the writing process and embraced a wide range of critical perspectives The result of this change is that terms such as poststructuralism social construction gender and genre which were largely unknown in 1965 now dominate discussion This reference book is a guide to the multiplicity of theories that have emerged to form the disciplinary foundation of composition studies The volume consists of 66 entries each of which is written by an expert contributor and focuses on a particular theory or group of theories While the entries show how various individuals have contributed to theoretical movements very few concentrate on the work of a single theorist Each entry first provides a critical summary of a particular theory or group of theories including key elements basic concepts and claims and information about seminal or particularly influential works It then reviews the theory s critical reception in composition studies and discusses its significance in the field The bibliography at the end of each entry lists primary texts and major scholarship related to the theory and provides additional suggestions for further reading The volume closes with a selected bibliography of important works
