Mass Media in Sub-Saharan Africa Louise M. Bourgault, 1995-06-22 Mass Media in Sub Saharan Africa analyzes how historical political economic social cultural and stylistic factors have shaped media products in African radio television and newspapers Bourgault investigates three principal influences the pre colonial legacy of the oral tradition the presence of an alienated managerial class and the domination of African nations by systems based on political patronage The first two chapters provide the theoretical framework Subsequent chapters look at the management of the electronic media radio and television broadcasting in content and practice the history of print media and the discourse style found in the press This work provides a wealth of historical information on media systems particularly those of the former anglophone and francophone countries together with recent developments in satellite communication small systems technology and the current move toward decentralization and privatization Bourgault also considers the political shifts affecting Africa in the 1990s and offers a radical blueprint for more responsive and informative media in the sub Saharan area

Mass Media in Sub-Saharan Africa Louise Manon Bourgault, 1995 Political Communication in Sub-Saharan Africa, Volume I Isaac Mhute, Esther Mavengano, 2024-10-12 This book is one of two volumes that examines the role of political communication media and language in transforming politics governance and democracy in Sub Saharan Africa Interdisciplinary in approach this first volume assesses themes including participatory politics mass media digital censorship and social media and politics in the region It also considers how politicians utilise language and the media to legitimate their authority influence citizens behaviour and the ways in which they vote It will appeal to all those interested in governance political communication media studies and African politics

Media and Democracy in Africa Michael Leslie, 2017-07-05 Recent discussion of democratization in Africa has focused primarily on the reform of formal state institutions the public service the judiciary and the legislature Similarly both scholars and activists have shown interest in how associational life and with it a civil society might be enhanced in the countries of the African continent Much less concern however has been directed to the communications media although they form a vital part of this process Media and Democracy in Africa provides the first comprehensive and up to date assessment of the role of the media in political change in sub Saharan Africa The central argument of the volume is that while the media may still be relatively weak compared to their positions in liberal democracies they have come to play a much more important role than ever before since independence Although they have not yet demonstrated sufficient effectiveness as public watchdogs and agenda setters they have succeeded in creating new communicative spaces for people who have previously been intimidated or silent Building on this the contributors argue that a different conceptualization of democratization than the mainstream currently uses may be necessary to capture the process in Africa where it is characterized by contestation rather than consolidation This volume shows that the media scene in Africa is diverse It stretches from the well developed and technologically advanced situation in South Africa to the still fledgling media operations that are typical in sub Saharan Africa In these countries print media as well as television and radio are just beginning to take their place in society and do so using simple and often outdated technology The volume also examines how these growing outlets are supplemented by informal media the so called radio trottoir or rumor mill whereby the autocratic and bureaucratic direction of public affairs are subject to private speculation and analysis Media and Democracy in Africa is organized to provide a historical perspective on the evolution of the African media placing the present in the context of the past including both colonial and post colonial experiences It will be of interest to Africa area specialists students of media and communications political scientists and sociologists Mass Media in Sub-Saharan Africa ,1995 Mediatized China-Africa Relations Shubo Li,2017-10-24 This cutting edge book explores the role of the media in the highly disputed area of China Africa relations notably how various aspects of the issue have been portrayed negotiated and contested in media and academic discourses As Africa s biggest trading partner and creditor China explores Africa not only as a marketplace for importing primary commodities and exporting manufactured goods but also as a preferred testing ground for its media and telecommunication sector aspiring for further internationalization At a time when the influence from Global North has been on the wane in the continent emerging powers are regarded as new inspirations for Africa s development China in particular tries to bolster multipolarity in Africa by factoring in media influence and facilitating the digitalization process of the continent This book offers an up to date geopolitical analysis of China Africa examining the role of communication and telecommunication in the power shift especially in constructing social and cultural realities in which the idea of development has been recurrently redefined and negotiated in the public domain This volume tackles the issue from the new perspective of mediatization considering how the media on the one hand shapes public opinion with its narratives and a logic of its own and on the other hand simultaneously becomes an integrated part of other institutions like politics trade business as more of these institutional activities are performed through both interactive and mass media

International Afro Mass Media James Jeter,1996-01-23 This guide represents the first serious academic assessment of the relationships between peoples in Africa and of African descent and Afro mass media around the world Experts on communications in sub Saharan and North Africa and the Caribbean and African American media in the United States characterize the settings and philosophical contexts for media in the countries that they survey the development of often difficult relationships between government society and the media the education and training of media personnel and the implications of new technologies and future challenges Designed for students teachers and professionals in communications and in the social sciences broadly This comparative study of Afro mass media the impact of social and political systems of culture and ideology of different communications mechanisms and of special problems is designed for students teachers and professionals in all areas of communications and mass media and in government sociology economics and African and African American studies

Mass Media James B. Martin, 2002 Mass media has become an integral part of the human experience News travels around the world in a split second affecting people in other countries in untold ways Although being on top of the news may be good at least for news junkies mass media also transmits values or the lack thereof condenses complex events and thoughts to simplified sound bites and often ignores the essence of an event or story The selective bibliography gathers the books and magazine literature over the previous ten years while providing access through author title and subject indexes

Press Freedom in Africa Gunilla Faringer, 1991-06-24 This is an authoritative study on the role of mass media in Third World development Using broad historical economic and political perspectives Gunilla L Faringer details the obstacles to a genuinely free mass circulation press in Black Africa and offers a thorough analysis of the African press The volume s six chapters meticulously catalog all pertinent data on press development performance and goals in English speaking sub Saharan Africa with primary focus on Ghana Nigeria and Kenya countries that represent three different courses of political development Faringer critically analyzes widely held attitudes among scholars and international organizations as to the role of mass media in Third World development Her findings challenge the prevalent belief that the primary task of Third World media is to function as a tool for economic development Outlining both present and future responsibilities of Third World mass media Press Freedom in Africa stresses the need for deeper understandings by mass media policy makers of the importance that history macroeconomic structure and political traditions hold in the Third World The detailed introduction considers the philosophical issues that underlie the crucial role of mass media in political change and national development Faringer surveys the unique obstacles confronting African nations as they have attempted to develop their own comprehensive media structures Subsequent chapters trace the history of newspapers in Black Africa before World War II survey the role of the press in the independence movement and examine the changing relations between government and press Two final chapters offer a critical perspective on press freedoms and functions and lay the groundwork for a more realistic concept of the press in the Third World This up to the minute resource will find broad acceptance for courses in international journalism African studies Third World development communications and mass media government and politics of Africa area studies political science political economy and civil rights

The Mass Media and Violent Conflicts in Sub-Saharan Africa Collins G. Adeyanju, 2018 Abstract Mass media have been a critical weapon of warfare since the cold war and even more recently the powerful intrusion of the new media transformed the landscape in terms of reach and influence Its role can be both constructive and deconstructive The Rwanda genocide armed violence in Nigeria and Kenya and Balkan wars has questioned its roles powers and ethical responsibilities in violent conflict circumstances In these cases the mass media played a poisonous role Although establishing a causal relationship between mass media and framing of opinion emotion and beliefs that steams violent conflicts in Sub Saharan Africa is neither linear nor clear However this paper underscores mass media s compelling influence on how perception in fragile armed conflict environment of Africa is developed It is not only used as an effective propaganda machine for promoting regime defense building resistant movement but also transforming the political actor s parochial interest into people

Building the Fourth Estate Chappell Lawson,2002-08-05 Based on an in depth examination of Mexico s print and broadcast media over the last twenty five years this book is the most richly detailed account available of the role of the media in democratization demonstrating the reciprocal relationship between changes in the press and changes in the political system In addition to illuminating the nature of political change in Mexico this accessibly written study also has broad implications for understanding the role of the mass media in democratization around the world

The Oxford Handbook of Africa and Economics Célestin Monga,Justin Yifu Lin,2015-07-02 A popular myth about the travails of Africa holds that the continent s long history of poor economic performance reflects the inability of its leaders and policymakers to fulfill the long list of preconditions to be met before sustained growth can be achieved These conditions are said to vary from the necessary quantity and quality of physical and human capital to the appropriate institutions and business environments While intellectually charming and often elegantly formulated that conventional wisdom is actually contradicted by historical evidence and common sense It also suggests a form of intellectual mimicry that posits a unique path to prosperity for all countries regardless of their level of development and economic structure In fact the argument underlining that reasoning is tautological and the policy prescriptions derived from it are fatally teleological low income countries are by definition those where such ingredients are missing None of today s high income countries started its growth process with the required and complete list of growth ingredients Unless one truly believes that the continent of Africa and most developing countries are ruled predominantly if not exclusively by plutocrats with a high propensity for sadomasochism the conventional view must be re examined debated and questioned This volume the second of the IOxford Handbook of Africa and Economics reassesses the economic policies and practices observed across the continent since independence It offers a collection of analyses by some of the leading economists and development thinkers of our time and reflects a wide range of perspectives and viewpoints Africa s emergence as a potential economic powerhouse in the years and decades ahead amply justifies the scope and ambition of the book
