Mastering Technology Commercialization Steven Overholt, 2016 Energy Technology 2015 Animesh R. Jha, Cong Wang, Neale R. Neelameggham, Donna Post Guillen, Li Li, Cynthia K. Belt, Randolph E. Kirchain, Jeffrey S.

Spangenberg, Frank Johnson, Andrew J. Gomes, Amit Pandey, Peter Hosemann, 2015-02-13 This book covers various technological aspects of sustainable energy ecosystems and processes that improve energy efficiency and reduce and sequester carbon dioxide CO₂ and other greenhouse emissions. Papers emphasize the need for sustainable technologies in extractive metallurgy, materials processing and manufacturing industries with reduced energy consumption and CO₂ emission. Industrial energy efficient technologies include innovative ore beneficiation, smelting technologies, recycling and waste heat recovery. The book also contains contributions from all areas of non nuclear and non traditional energy sources including renewable energy sources such as solar, wind and biomass. Papers from the following symposia are presented in the book: Energy Technologies and Carbon Dioxide Management, Recycling and Sustainability Update, Magnetic Materials for Energy Applications, V Sustainable Energy and Layered Double Hydroxides, High temperature Systems for Energy Conversion and Storage, Structural Materials, Heat Transport Fluids and Novel System Designs for High Power and Process Heat Generation.

Information Feudalism Peter Drahos, John Braithwaite, 2017-09-25 New intellectual property regimes are entrenching new inequalities. Access to information is fundamental to the exercise of human rights and marketplace competition but patents are being used to lock up vital educational, software, genetic and other information, creating a global property order dominated by a multinational elite. How did intellectual property rules become part of the World Trade Organization's free trade agreements? How have these rules changed the knowledge game for international business? What are the consequences for the ownership of biotechnology and digital technology and for all those who have to pay for what was once shared information? Based on extensive interviews with key players, this book tells the story of these profound transformations in information ownership. The authors argue that in the globalized information society the rich have found new ways to rob the poor and shows how intellectual property rights can be more democratically defined. Phytoremediation Steven C.

McCutcheon, Jerald L. Schnoor, 2004-03-22 Phytoremediation is an exciting new method for controlling and cleaning up hazardous wastes using green plants. This book is the first to compile the state of the science and engineering arts in this rapidly advancing field. Phytoremediation Approaches the subject from the perspectives of biochemistry, genetics, toxicology and pathway analysis. Is written by two of the premier experts in the field. Biotechnology Entrepreneurship Craig Shimasaki, 2014-04-08 As an authoritative guide to biotechnology enterprise and entrepreneurship, Biotechnology Entrepreneurship and Management supports the international community in training the biotechnology leaders of tomorrow. Trade in Ideas Eskil Ullberg, 2012-02-02 The economic system is generally understood to operate on the premise of exchange. The most important factor in economic development has always been technology as a way to expand a limited resource base. Such increase in technology and knowledge is generally accepted by economists but the mechanisms of exchange through which this happens are much less studied. Generally a static analysis of product exchange incorporating new technology has been undertaken. This book explores the transition of trade in ideas from an exchange largely within firms and nations to an exchange between firms and nations. This process has been going on since the beginning of the patent system where importing trading technology was made policy in 1474 more than 500 years ago. However during the past 25 30 years a growth in exchange of technology between specialized firms cooperating based on patent licensing has been phenomenal with annual licensing transactions exceeding a trillion dollars not counting value of cross licensing. Such specialized exchange has been seen in history but not at this scale and level of coordination. Using principles of experimental economics the author investigates the licensing contract and mechanisms of exchange rules of trade as this exchange moves towards organized markets with prices. A key issue concerns the effect of introducing demand side bidding through which the patent system introduces specialization and multiple use of the same technology in different new products thus expanding the use of technology a firm has to more actors products and consumers. The risk and uncertainty in market access for cheaper better and unique products and services are reduced through new and competitive technology. Questions raised are related to the optimal integration of information and rules in dynamic exchange of patents through institutions. The view presented shows how inventors and traders can sell their intellectual property to buyers in a producer market in this case in licensing contracts on patents to diversify risk and monetize value based on an experimental economic study where the performance and behavioral properties of these institutions is the object of investigation. More fundamentally the work illustrates the theoretical design and patent system policy issues in a transition from personal to impersonal trade in ideas. Schacht, 2008 Congressional interest in facilitating U S technological innovation led to the passage of P L 96 517

Amendments to the Patent and Trademark Act commonly referred to as the Bayh Dole Act after its two main sponsors. The act grants patent rights to inventions arising out of government sponsored research and development R D to certain types of entities with the expressed purpose of encouraging the commercialization of new technologies through cooperative ventures between and among the research community small business and industry. Patents provide an economic incentive for companies to pursue further development and commercialization. Studies indicate that research funding accounts for approximately one quarter of the costs associated with bringing a new product to market. Patent ownership is seen as a way to encourage the additional and often substantial investment necessary for generating new goods and services. In an academic setting the possession of title to inventions is expected to provide motivation for the university to license the technology to the private sector for commercialization in expectation of royalty payments. The Bayh Dole Act has been seen as particularly successful in meeting its objectives. However while the legislation provides a general framework to promote expanded utilization of the results of federally funded research and development questions are being raised as to the adequacy of current arrangements. Most agree that closer cooperation among industry government and academia can augment funding sources both in the private and public sectors increase technology transfer stimulate more innovation beyond invention lead to new products and processes and expand markets. However others point out that collaboration may provide an increased opportunity for conflict of interest redirection of research less openness in sharing of scientific discovery and a greater emphasis on applied rather than basic research. From Lab to Market S.K. Kassiech, H.R.

Radosevich, 1994-07-31 The topic of this book the commercialization of public sector technology continues to grow in importance in the United States and similar societies. The issues involved are relevant to many roles including those of policy makers managers patent attorneys licensing agents and technical staff members of public technology sources. Institutions increasingly involved in the process include federal and other government laboratories and their related agencies public universities and their state governments public and private transfer agents and of course all the private recipients of public technology. Scarcely a day goes by without a significant event related to technology transfer and commercialization. The popular business press is regularly carrying articles addressing the issues explaining new initiatives and describing events of notable success or failure | As an example of current important events the Technology Reinvestment Project TRP is formulating its initiatives to transfer public technology and promote technology based public/private partnerships as a collaboration between the Advanced Research Projects Agency ARPA the National Institute of Standards and Technology NIST the National Science Foundation NSF the National Aeronautics and Space Administration NASA and the Department of Energy Defense Programs DOE DP Inventions And Patents Steve S Barbarich, 2000-07-01 Today one of the easiest ways to make money is to create and sell original ideas Every year more than 100 000 patents are granted in the U S creating a billion dollar industry for those using intellectual property With this book would be inventors can develop their ideas with low risk and a minimum of investment without quitting their day jobs Attorney and patent holder Steve Barbarich takes readers on an exciting journey through the patenting process From concept to marketable product there are step by step instructions that anyone can follow This book features important information on Choosing which ideas to pursue Taking your ideas into the marketplace Prototyping and test marketing Filing the proper forms Protecting your ideas And much more Commercializing New Technologies Vijay K. Jolly, 1997 Drawing on scores of case examples from a variety of industries this book highlights both successful and unsuccessful attempts at technology commercialization and makes the case for a fresh approach to R D management based on specialization by stage rather than by function It also explores the implications for managing technology investments How to Invent and Protect Your Invention Joseph P.
