Food Composition Data H. Greenfield,2013-03-09 About twenty years ago there was a recognition in Europe that real benefits would flow from coordinating the manner in which food composition tables were produced in the various countries of Europe Subsequent development of computerised nutritional data bases has further highlighted the potential advantages of working together Such cooperation could lead to improved quality and compatibility of the various European nutrient data bases and the values within them This realisation was one of the driving forces behind the development of the Eurofoods initiative in the 1980 s when those people in Europe interested in data on food composition began working together This initiative received further impetus with the establishment of the Eurofoods Infant Concerted Action Project within the framework of the FLAIR Food Linked Agro Industrial Research Programme of the Commission of the European Communities It was quickly recognised that the draft guidelines for the production management and use of food composition data which had been prepared under the aegis of INFOODS International Network of Food Data Systems a project of the United Nations University would be especially applicable to the objectives of the Concerted Action The guidelines have been written by two recognised experts Many people associated with FLAIR Eurofoods Infant have added constructive criticism and advice to that offered previously by those associated with INFOODS Thus the guidelines are backed by a consensus in the community of those responsible for the production and use of food composition tables and nutrient data bases

The Technology of Vitamins in Food P. Berry Ottaway,2012-12-06 The last few years have seen a growing consumer awareness of nutrition and healthy eating in general As a consequence the food industry has become more concerned with the nutritional value of products and the maintenance of guaranteed micronutrient levels While the food industry has the responsibility of producing foods that provide a realistic supply of nutrients including vitamins it is now also required to offer produce with a high degree of convenience and a long shelf life Vitamins are relatively unstable being affected by factors such as heat light and other food components but also by the processes needed to preserve the goods or to convert them into consumer products such as pasteurization sterilization extrusion and irradiation The result of these interactions may be a partial or total degradation of the vitamins Food technology is concerned with both the maintenance of vitamin levels in foods and the restoration of the vitamin content to foods where losses have occurred In addition foods designed for special nutritional purposes such as infant food and slimming goods need to be enriched or fortified with vitamins and other micronutrients This book reviews vitamins as ingredients of industrially manufactured food products The technology of their production and use is covered from the food technologist s and engineer s points of view Detailed coverage is also provided of other technical aspects such as analysis stability and the use of vitamins as food technological aids
